Learning to Lead Jennifer R. Nájera, 2024-09-06 In Learning to Lead Jennifer R Nájera explores the intersections of education and activism among undocumented students at the University of California Riverside Taking an expansive view of education Nájera shows how students' experiences in college both in and out of the classroom can affect their activism and advocacy work Students learn from their families communities peers and student and political organizations In these different spaces they learn how to navigate community and college life as undocumented people. Students are able to engage campus organizations where they can cultivate their leadership skills and importantly learn that they are not alone. These students embody and mobilize their education through both large and small political actions such as protests, workshops for financial aid applications and Know Your Rights events. As students create community with each other, they come to understand that their individual experiences of illegality are part of a larger structure of legal violence. This type of education empowers students to make their way to and through college, change their communities and ultimately assert their humanity.

Take and Read is a collection of essays first presented as oral theological reflections on books written to stimulate conversations among diverse groups of readers which included farmers, physicians, teachers, poets, novelists, scientists, people involved in business, finance, relief work and many other walks of life ranging in age from twenty something to eighty. These reflections introduce and offer samples of theological readings of a variety of books. The result is a collection of essays addressing a wide range of topics from food security to violence from dementia to indigenous issues. Perhaps this book is best described as an invitation to joining a conversation about books and more importantly about God.
