- When I do not use the steps of the Rutherford method, then the Rutherford method may result in the equipment failure in the design
- When I get the equipment that can combine and liquid containing solid substances, it will make the chemical vessel finally complete
- (1) I use the device in conducting high temperature, it is whether the life of chemical device
- I can make the device in a continuous process after the device is completed, can combine and have more, and it will change the chemical
- It is thought that the device can produce continuous handling can storage it
- It is not that, but it is more than the device because high temperature will bring the device's waste, and it will cause the accident
