Sticking with sport during school years linked to academic success, Published by the University of Sydney, 5th February 2024.

Physical health is the health dimension represented in this article due to its focus on the benefits of physical activity throughout schooling years. This article's focal point is the continuation of team and individual sports throughout high school due to its physical health benefits and its academic/focus benefits. Finally, the article highlights the difference between team and individual sports while drawing on the overall physical health benefits of participating in sports.

Determinants of health

Peers: Peers can contribute to the development of the meaning of physical health reflected in this article as they have a strong influence over our opinions and attitudes when it comes to certain choices. When your peers begin to take up a sport it can motivate you to also participate, particularly in team sports. Your peers' values can also affect your view on physical health, for example if peers value sport over education, it can lead you to question what you should be putting your efforts towards.

Geographic location: Your Geographic location can contribute to the development of the meaning of physical health shown throughout the article as location is a main factor when deciding to participate in sport. For people living in rural areas or far away from sporting facilities it is much harder to participate in an individual or team sport while balancing school. Your geographic location can also determine the type of sports you do whether this is individual or team, depending on what is accessible to you. Relating to the article, your geographic location can restrict you from keeping up and participating in sport, especially in the later years of school.

Attitudes: A person's attitudes determine the role we play in protecting our physical health and can contribute to this meaning. Relating to the article a person's attitude towards playing sport or having to be physically active can affect their physical health while putting into perspective other values like education. On the other hand, if someone has a positive attitude towards keeping up with sport throughout their schooling life, it can lead to better physical health and other ranging benefits.

Mental health

<https://www.theguardian.com/australia-news/article/2024/may/09/huge-proportion-of-mental-health-conditions-in-australia-found-to-be-caused-by-childhood-maltreatment>

Huge proportion of mental health conditions in Australia found to be caused by childhood maltreatment, The Guardian, By Natasha May, published May 9th, 2024.

Mental health is the dimension of health represented in this article due to its focus on mental health disorders caused from childhood maltreatment. The concern for the effect of mental health is the main focal point of this article as it highlights the causes for the high number of mental disorders including anxiety, depression. This article shows the dimension of mental health by describing the impact of physical, sexual, emotional abuse and neglect before the age of 18 on mental wellbeing of Australian citizens.

Determinants of health

Family: Family has a strong contribution to the meaning of mental health as they are responsible for meeting basic needs, if these needs are not met it can lead to negative mental health. If you experience neglect of living needs like food, housing, clothing and neglect of love and support it can cause severe problems for the future such as attachment issues, mental health disorders and lack of knowledge. Silver! Bronze!* Brett Preiss, 2020-06-05 This book is a guide to assist any teacher who dreads writing those school reports every year How frustrating is it searching for that appropriate word or phrase to describe your students achievements This guide will help you to overcome those annoying mental blocks when writing your school reports It will help you write crystal clear teacher comments for any grade from pre school to high school The words phrases and samples of comments can also be useful for parent teacher conferences marking and correcting children's work or writing referrals for students Counselors will find it useful for taking notes and keeping records of students There are sample comments on children's social and emotional development ESL teachers and language teachers will also find it a useful companion to finding the right word to express their students' progress. There are words and phrases specifically for Listening, Speaking, Reading and Writing. There are also words and phrases to help teachers in various subject areas such as drama, music, sport and art. The keywords and phrases help you say the difficult things nicely. The words and phrases under each subject have been divided into two general groups: Experts and Apprentices. The Experts are those coping very well in that subject area and the Apprentices are students who find that subject a real challenge. It's always important to try and be positive as we can in report writing and offer encouragement to students even if they are struggling. For general comments, examples have been included to help you. These are organized under three headings: Gold for the child who simply shines in all areas, Silver for the child who copes satisfactorily in class and Bronze for the child who is struggling and finds learning a real challenge. There's also a page titled '100 ways to say very good' as all teachers know that by the tenth report it is a brain drain to avoid repeating ourselves. Saying the difficult things nicely can often be achieved by writing something positive first followed by a more direct comment or vice versa. It's about balancing the good with the challenging. Providing an alternative to negative comments leaves more room for hope for students to succeed. Many people love teaching and working with students. However, often report writing can be a challenging and demanding part of the job. This book will be of assistance even as a springboard for your thoughts when once again it is report writing time.

The book 500 Report Card Comments is a collection of unique remarks and comments towards the motivation of kids. They may be used as a model but the flexibility they provide is where most of their strength rests. The teachers are urged to make these remarks their own by personalising them, infusing them with unique insights and making them their own.
