

INTRODUCTION

The mammalian world of bats is experiencing a devastation of several species occurring in the eastern portion of the United States because of what has been labeled "White Nose Syndrome" (Blehert et al., 2009). It has been approximately four years since massive die-offs of bats were discovered. The fungus Geomyces destructans has been identified and implicated. While most scientists are still uncertain as to whether the fungus is a causal pathogen or merely an opportunistic agent, they are trying to determine how it is spread.

Scientists are bewildered as to how to contain WNS. Efforts have taken place by both private and government sectors to restrict cave usage by humans and to do captive colony conservation (CBD, 2010). Scientists are also working on temperature control measures in caves and antifungals that could contain WNS (Vargas, 2009).
