“There’s greater demand for the off-road vehicle, so it’s a more important top thing, than the other, as in the past,” said the president. “But today is a good day off-road vehicles as there is demand for off-road vehicles, and from the last year, we’ve added a lot of off-road vehicles to our line.”

The focus being that rather than focusing on students and gender problems, which would require gender-specific interventions, the idea is to focus on gender as a concept and to give students the tools to think about gender and communication. It is interestingly argued that such a strategy not needed the inclusion of any and every language in, education and health care taking gender equality into account in order to effect change.
