Costantino,Robert A. Desharnais,2012-12-06 The study of populations is becoming increasingly focused on dynamics We believe there are two reasons for this trend The first is the impact of nonlinear dynamics with its exciting ideas and colorful language bifurcations domains of attraction chaos fractals strange attractors Complexity which is so very much a part of biology now seems to be also a part of mathematics A second trend is the accessibility of the new concepts The barriers to communication between theorist and experimentalist seem less impenetrable The active participation of the experimentalist means that the theory will obtain substance Our role is the application of the theory of dynamics to the analysis of biological populations We began our work early in 1979 by writing an ordinary differential equation for the rate of change in adult numbers which was based on an equilibrium model proposed a decade earlier During the next few months we filled our notebook with straightforward deductions from the model and its associated biological implications Slowly some of the biological observations were explained and papers followed on a variety of topics genetic and demographic stability stationary probability distributions for population size population growth as a birth death process natural selection and density dependent population growth genetic disequilibrium and the stationary stochastic dynamics of adult numbers Population dynamics; proceedings Symposium on Population Dynamics, Mathematics Research Center, 1972, Population Dynamics Self-Instructional Materials Project,1973 Population Dynamics Mathematics Research Center.
