
Methods: Samples, aged 1–21 months, were re-administered four 15-minute target word stimuli (e.g., house, cat, ball, book) and another population of newly-learned words (e.g., fish, bird, cow) in a separate set of stimuli. These pairs of word sets (familiar and novel) formed the population of newly-learned words, and stimuli 1–4 formed a stimulus set of re-administered words and stimuli 5–8 formed a stimulus set of the familiar and the re-administered word sets. Single population registers (familiar, novel, and other) also, then, represented the entire population.
