One reason that studying memory and organisation may be interesting is because the area was neglected, up until the 1990's, when psychologists became interested in how an 'enormously important but complex facility operates in people' after being stimulated by the attempts to provide information about computer systems and how information is organised.(R.Gross, Hodder and Sloughton)

The meaning of a word is said to be given by 'pointers' which basically point from the word out to the meaning. For example, Collins and Quillian suggested that pointers could indicate properties. For example a 'canary' would have pointers to 'can sing'. Other pointers may point to categories that a certain word belongs to. So a canary would have pointers to 'bird' (on a lower level) and to animal (on a higher level). The model said that if a person was given the sentence 'A canary can sing' and was asked to decide whether it is true or not they would only need to find the word canary and retrieve properties stored with that word.

To test this model Collins and Quillian did an experiment where subjects were presented with sentences and were told to judge whether true or false by pressing the correct button as quick as possible.The length of reaction time indicated the difficulty.They found that the time taken to decide t
