Studying Educational and Social Policy Ronald H. Heck,2004-07-19 The purpose of this textbook is to introduce beginning researchers to the study of policy making how it has been examined from a scholarly perspective and the salient issues to consider in conceptualizing and conducting policy research Southern School Journal ,1900 The School Journal ,1904 Humanizing Distance Learning Paul Emerich France,2020-11-06 In some ways shouldn t we always be teaching from a distance Paul France asks this not as pitch for distance learning But because part of the reason distance learning has been so challenging Paul asserts is that we re replicating long standing practices that promote dependent learning in our students Why not use this unique moment of time to reconnect with the true purpose of teaching to help our students become liberated learners and free thinkers The next logical step in teachers months long distance learning journey Humanizing Distance Learning describes how to center humanity and equity in our process of reimagining learning Even while teaching and learning miles apart through screens you ll discover how to Build independence within your students so they're better equipped to tackle challenges with persistence and learn how to learn. Make collaboration and human connection essential components of your pedagogy offering students the chance to socialize and learn from one another. Center and unpack students' identities helping them develop a conscious knowledge of themselves all the while using their self-identified strengths to overcome any obstacles. Plan, prepare and implement humanized instruction while teaching for student liberation both digitally and in person. Investigate technology integration including the Digital Divide as well as ways to minimize EdTech integration so that our collective sense of humanity can continue to be front and center. The future, Paul writes, may be unclear, the road may be rocky and the story may continue to be long and winding as we push forward through this global crisis. But the answer will always be simple: We must teach and learn in pursuit of a deeper sense of collective humanity and for no other reason. This book is equal parts visionary and practical, courageous and invitational. It addresses foundational needs and wrenching challenges teachers faced during the recent time when U.S. teachers abruptly found themselves teaching remotely. It is a deeply humanizing book.

Carol Ann Tomlinson, William Clay Parrish Jr., Professor Emeritus, University of Virginia

Humanizing Distance Learning is a book for our times not only because it addresses how to build a culture of thinking and teach for understanding at a distance but also because it challenges the status quo of education by offering a more liberated and humane vision.

Ron Ritchhart, Senior Research Associate, Harvard Graduate School of Education

Paul France has produced a timely and necessary book that will help educators humanize distance learning. Recognizing incredible dimensions of complexity, this book will surely help educators traverse times of uncertainty in distance learning.

Structuring Inequality Tracy L. Steffes, 2024-04-02

How inequality was forged, fought over and forgotten through public policy in metropolitan Chicago. As in many American metropolitan areas, inequality in Chicagoland is visible in its neighborhoods. These inequalities are not inevitable, however. They have been constructed and deepened by public policies around housing, schooling, taxation and local governance, including hidden state government policies. In Structuring Inequality, historian Tracy L. Steffes shows how metropolitan inequality in Chicagoland was structured, contested and naturalized over time, even as reformers tried to change it through school desegregation, affordable housing and property tax reform. While these efforts had modest successes in the city and the suburbs, reformers faced significant resistance and counter mobilization from affluent suburbanites, real estate developers and other defenders of the status quo who defended inequality and reshaped the policy conversation about it. Grounded in comprehensive archival research and policy analysis, Structuring Inequality examines the history of Chicagoland's established systems of inequality and provides perspective on the inequality we live with today.

School Reform, Corporate Style Dorothy Shipps, 2006

Like other big city school systems, Chicago's has been repeatedly reformed over the last century. Yet its schools have fallen far short of citizens' expectations and left a gap between the performances of white and minority students. Many blame the educational establishment for resisting change. Other critics argue that reform occurs

too often still others claim it comes not often enough Dorothy Shipps reappraises the tumultuous history of educational progress in Chicago revealing that the persistent lack of improvement is due not to the extent but rather the type of reform Throughout the twentieth century managerial reorganizations initiated by the business community repeatedly altered the governance structure of schools as well as the relationships of teachers to children and parents but brought little improvement while other more promising reform models were either resisted or crowded out Shipps chronicles how Chicago's corporate actors led abetted or restrained nearly every attempt to transform the city's school system then asks whether schools might be better reformed by others To show why city schools have failed urban children so badly she traces Chicago's reform history over four political eras revealing how corporate power was instrumental in designing and revamping the system Her narrative encompasses the formative era of 1880-1930 when teachers unions moderated business plans previously unexplored business activism from 1930 to 1980 when civil rights dominated school reform and the decentralization of the 1980s She also covers the uneasy cooperation among business associations in the 1990s to install the mayor as head of the school system a governing regime now challenged by privatization advocates Business people may be too wedded to a stunted view of educators to forge a productive partnership for change Unionized teachers bridle at the second class status accorded them by managers If reform is to reach deeply into classrooms Shipps concludes it might well require a new coalition of teachers unions and parents to create a fresh agenda that supersedes corporate interests This study clearly shows that in Chicago as elsewhere urban schooling is intertwined with politics and power By reviewing more than a century of corporate efforts to make education work Shipps makes a strong case that it's high time to look elsewhere perhaps to educators themselves for new leadership

Scholars have long explored school desegregation through various lenses examining policy the role of the courts and federal government resistance and backlash and the fight to preserve Black schools However few studies have examined the group experiences of students within desegregated schools Crossing Segregated Boundaries centers the experiences of over sixty graduates of the class of 1988 in three desegregated Chicago high schools Chicago's housing segregation and declining white enrollments severely curtailed the city's school desegregation plan and as a result desegregation options were academically stratified providing limited opportunities for a chosen few while leaving the majority of students in segregated underperforming schools Nevertheless desegregation did provide a transformative opportunity for those students involved While desegregation was the external impetus that brought students together the students themselves made integration possible and many students found that the few years that they spent in these schools had a profound impact on broadening their understanding of different racial and ethnic groups In very real ways desegregated schools reduced racial isolation for
