Organizational Report Cards William T. Gormley Jr., David L. Weimer, 1999-03 In recent years consumers professional organizations government officials and third party payers have become increasingly concerned about how to assess the quality of the services provided by organizations in both the private and the public sectors One new approach is the organizational report card which compares the performance of organizations such as public schools colleges hospitals and HMOs This book offers the first comprehensive study of such instruments It discusses the circumstances under which they are desirable alternatives to other policy instruments such as regulation how they should be designed who is likely to use them and for what purpose and what role if any government should have in their creation Informed by cases drawn from education health and other policy areas this book develops a conceptual framework for analyzing these issues It explores the tradeoffs in measuring performance the methods of communicating results effectively to mass and elite audiences and the ways in which organizations respond to the data gathered

Accountability in education: meeting our commitments UNESCO, 2017-10-30 The second edition of the Global Education Monitoring Report (GEM Report) presents the latest evidence on global progress towards the education targets of the UN Sustainable Development Goals. With hundreds of millions of people still not going to school and many not achieving minimum skills at school, it is clear education systems are off track to achieve global goals. The marginalized currently bear the most consequences but also stand to benefit the most if policy makers pay sufficient attention to their needs. Faced with these challenges along with tight budgets and increased emphasis on results-oriented value for money, countries are searching for solutions. Increased accountability often tops the list. The 2017-8 GEM Report shows the entire array of approaches to accountability in education. It ranges from countries unused to the concept where violations of the right to education go unchallenged to countries where accountability has become an end in itself instead of a means to inclusive, equitable, and high-quality education and lifelong learning for all. The report emphasizes that education is a shared responsibility. While governments have primary responsibility, all actors—schools, teachers, parents, students, international organizations, private sector providers, civil society, and the media—have a role in improving education systems. The report emphasized the importance of transparency and availability of information but urges caution in how data are used. It makes the case for avoiding accountability systems with a disproportionate focus on narrowly defined results and punitive sanctions. In an era of multiple accountability tools, the report provides clear evidence on those that are working and those that are not. Back cover
