TOPIC: PRINCIPAL PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

PROBLEM STATEMENT

Principal leadership is correlated with student achievement, and there are significant links between specific principal behaviors and student achievement (Petersen et al., 2010; Tang et al., 2018). Researchers posit that "effective leadership means more than knowing what to do—it's knowing when, how, and why to do it" (Petersen et al., 2010, p. 2). However, there is limited research on the principal as a learner, specifically principal professional development, and its impact on principal leader effectiveness (Dewettre, 2014).

Researchers can identify the types of professional development experiences that are most likely to build principals' capacity to be successful leaders, negative selection trends and stagnant student achievement may be reversed.

PURPOSE OF THE STUDY

The purpose of this study is to explore the perceptions of principals regarding their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts. The research will seek to identify the types of professional development experiences that are most likely to build principals' capacity to be successful leaders, negative selection trends and stagnant student achievement may be reversed.

RESEARCH QUESTIONS

1. What are the most common types of professional development experiences that principals report as most effective in building their capacity to lead school improvement efforts?

2. How do principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts relate to their perceptions of the effectiveness of their professional development experiences?

POPULATION AND METHODOLOGY

The targeted population for this study is principals who are currently serving in the position. The research will seek to identify the types of professional development experiences that are most likely to build principals' capacity to be successful leaders, negative selection trends and stagnant student achievement may be reversed.

BACKGROUND

The role of the principal is a complex one, and it is not always clear what it entails. In a recent study, researchers found that principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts are related to their perceptions of their own leadership effectiveness (Dewettre, 2014). This study seeks to explore the relationship between principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts and their perceptions of their own leadership effectiveness.

IMPORTANCE OF SCHOOL LEADERSHIP

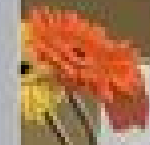

Effective school leadership is critical to student achievement. Principals who are prepared to lead school improvement efforts are more likely to be successful in their role. This study seeks to explore the relationship between principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts and their perceptions of their own leadership effectiveness.

SIGNIFICANCE

The findings of this study will be significant in that they will provide information about the types of professional development experiences that are most effective in building principals' capacity to lead school improvement efforts. This information can be used to inform the design of professional development programs for principals, and to inform the selection of principals for school improvement efforts.

LITERATURE REVIEW

Research has shown that principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts are related to their perceptions of their own leadership effectiveness (Dewettre, 2014). This study seeks to explore the relationship between principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts and their perceptions of their own leadership effectiveness.
