Walking Prey Holly Austin Smith, 2024-09-04 Today two cultural forces are converging to make America's youth easy targets for sex traffickers Younger and younger girls are engaging in adult sexual attitudes and practices and the pressure to conform means thousands have little self worth and are vulnerable to exploitation At the same time thanks to social media texting and chatting services predators are able to ferret out their victims more easily than ever before In Walking Prey advocate and former victim Holly Austin Smith shows how middle class suburban communities are fast becoming the new epicenter of sex trafficking in America Smith speaks from experience Without consistent positive guidance or engagement Holly was ripe for exploitation at age fourteen A chance encounter with an older man led her to run away from home and she soon found herself on the streets of Atlantic City Her experience led her two decades later to become one of the foremost advocates for trafficking victims Smith argues that these young women should be treated as victims by law enforcement but that too often the criminal justice system lacks the resources and training to prevent the vicious cycle of prostitution This is a clarion call to take a sharp look at one of the most striking human rights abuses and one that is going on in our own backyard

Report of the Committee of Council on Education (England and Wales), with Appendix Great Britain. Council on Education, 1852 Name, Shame and Blame Christine

Stewart, 2014-12-02 Papua New Guinea is one of the many former British Commonwealth colonies which maintain the criminalisation of the sexual activities of two groups despite the fact that the sex takes place between consenting adults in private sellers of sex and males who have sex with males The English common law system was imposed on the colonies with little regard for the social regulation and belief systems of the colonised and in most instances was retained and developed post Independence regardless of the infringements of human rights involved Now the HIV pandemic has thrown a spotlight not altogether welcome on the sexual activities of these two groups In Papua New Guinea a growing body of behavioural research has focused on such matters as individual sexual partnering condom use and awareness of HIV My work however has a different purpose I chose the terms in the title to highlight a nexus which I believe exists between the criminal law and negative attitudes of society At an international level the argument has been put that decriminalising sex work and sodomy will facilitate HIV epidemic management reducing the stigma and discrimination these groups encounter and making them easier to reach I undertook my research therefore with the aim of gaining deeper understanding of the effects the current situation of criminalisation might have on the social lives of these criminalised people today in the country generally and in Port Moresby the capital in particular and whether these effects might provide evidence to support the argument for law reform This is a rich and well researched study of the legal social and moral issues surrounding the criminalisation of two forms of consensual sex A very impressive piece of work it is extensively documented relies on a wide range of material and makes a clear and coherent argument about the place of law in producing identities and exclusions The attention to change over time and the complexity of the ways in which sexual behaviour is enacted and punished is a particular strength of the book Professor Sally Engle Merry Anthropology Law and Society New York University This book is an exceptional contribution to our knowledge of the nexus between the criminal law and negative attitudes of society and what effects criminalization has on the social lives of prostitutes and males who have sex with males and whether these effects might provide evidence to support the argument for law reform The author s experience of Papua New Guinea allows her to comment in depth on such matters as the United Nations human rights approach to the HIV epidemic and their call to decriminalize all sexual acts between consenting adults She shows that criminal laws with the help of the normative discourse of religion and media underpin and legitimize high levels of stigma discrimination and abuse of prostitutes and males who have sex with males The quality of the writing and general presentation are exceptional Laura Zimmer Tamakoshi Truman State University retired

The Safano Dementia Selina Elliot, 2013-09-26 Where were her shoes It was strange to even think about it There were certainly more frightening things to consider The guns the men the crash plus there were all the things left behind which included her passport These were all too much So she thought instead about her bare feet Rebecca Dawson had worked hard to afford this trip to France She wanted to see everything and experience all Europe had to offer And she longed for adventure Canada was home but it was safe What was life without a little adventure What she hadn t wanted was what she and her two best friends had found Now they faced imprisonment torture and slavery But the most frightening was the one thing they didn t know about the reason Fredrick Brouillette and his group were here And in the midst of it all Rebecca would have the answer to the one question she had never seriously asked herself how would she handle a crisis
