Remaking Cities (Routledge Revivals) Alison Ravetz,2013-10-08 This book published in 1980 is an iconoclastic account of one of the pillars of the welfare state British town and country planning between 1945 and 1975 Always a fine balance between central control and market forces it was challenged by strains within and between the environmental professions and protest by people dispossessed or alienated by re shaped urban environments Remaking Cities critiques the export of western style planning to the developing world and reviews initiatives rooted in different understandings of growth appearing in those years Nearly forty years on many of the same issues beset us notably the depressingly familiar inner city problem despite countless reports funds and programmes But now our infrastructure and services once publicly owned are privatised and fragmented and local government progressively relegated The very core of planning development control is being pined in a struggle to regain the growth which led to our current crisis This gives fresh importance to the need for new modes of creating liveable sustainable environments emphasised in this important work Problems and Planning in Third World Cities Michael Pacione,1981 Based On New Research And Dealing With Topics Currently Of Crucial Concern To The World Community This Book Makes Accessible Much Diverse Literature Including One Of The Best Sources Of Material On Third World Cities The Reports Of Un Organisations On Urban Planning Regions in Question (Routledge Revivals)

Charles Gore,2013-12-19 Originally published in1984 Regional development planning has grown rapidly in recent years as both an academic specialism and a focus of policy and practice Books and articles on the subject have proliferated and all across the Third World governments have become committed to it setting up large new departments and even ministries Charles Gore argues that this growing popularity of regional planning in developing countries is profoundly paradoxical

Self-Organisation Shapes Travel Behaviours and Social Exclusion in Deprived Urban Neighbourhoods of China Joseph Cho-yam Lau,2020-03-19 This book investigates the influence of self organisation processes on the commuting of the poor workers in urban China It suggests a new approach to investigate and measure individual access and it argues that dynamic interactions between individual action and social structure influence individual s access to transport which cannot be measured using other traditional accessibility approaches The overwhelming majority of models in transport research assume that socio economic factors and the built environment influence the accessibility of transport for individuals This book provides evidence that individual decision makings and actions are also vital factors to bring out changes in accessibility Further the study adopts a self organisation process and structuration theory to illustrate that a significant proportion of travel problems of migrants are rooted in the interaction between actions and social structures Any change in migrants actions or social structures in the self organisation process would result in the production of complex and spontaneous travel behaviour The self organisation approach presented provides a new approach for urban transport planning in the future particularly on the investigation of the accessibility of disadvantaged social groups By using the social theories transport research can have an effect on commuting behaviour and to improve poor workers quality of life

Planning in the Third World Robert Potter,2012-08-06 First published in 1985 this book reconsiders the whole question of urbanisation and planning in the Third World It argues that public involvement which is now an accepted part of Western planning should be used more in Third World cities It shows that many inhabitants of Third World cities are migrants from rural areas and have very definite ideas about what the function of the city should be and what it ought to offer and it goes on to argue that therefore a planning process which involves more public participation would better serve local needs and would do much more to solve problems than the contemporary approach Books in Print ,1991 Subject Guide to Children's Books in Print 1997 Bowker Editorial Staff,R R Bowker Publishing,1996-09
