2023 PNG Rural Household Survey Report Schmidt, Emily, Fang, Peixun, Jemal, Mekamu Kedir, Mahrt, Kristi, Mukerjee, Rishabh, Rosenbach, Gracie, Yadav, Shweta, 2024-03-18 From May to December 2023 the International Food Policy Research Institute IFPRI implemented a rural household survey that collected detailed data on rural household food consumption and expenditures agricultural production practices employment profiles child and mother 24 hour diet recall and child anthropometry measurements in Papua New Guinea PNG The research team carried out the survey which used location based sampling across five agroecological study areas of which four of the areas were defined using elevation and rainfall variation The five agroecological survey areas were seasonal highlands nonseasonal highlands seasonal lowlands nonseasonal lowlands and islands the islands survey sample was not disaggregated by elevation or precipitation patterns In identifying seasonal and nonseasonal survey areas we adapted the rainfall seasonality categories established by Bourke and Harwood 2009 who evaluated the relative difference in rainfall between the wet and the dry season using resource mapping units defined by the PNG Resource Information System PNGRIS The areas of the country that experience large seasonal variation in rainfall heavy to light depending on the season are classified as seasonal whereas the areas that experience moderate to continuously heavy rainfall throughout the year are classified as nonseasonal see Figure A1 1 in the appendix for the survey seasonality classification by area In nonseasonal areas agricultural growing conditions remain similar year round whereas seasonal rainfall areas have agricultural conditions that necessitate a variety of production strategies Lowland and highland areas were defined using elevation data areas 1 000 meters or more above sea level were classified as highlands and those below 1 000 meters were classified as lowlands The survey collected data from 270 communities across 14 provinces from a total of 2 699 households It is important to note that the survey is not nationally representative Rather we chose a purposive sample using criteria that would enable analysts of the data to understand the key factors that interact within rural households and communities to create more resilient local food systems more diversified employment profiles and improved well being Generalizable relationships between variables that affect socioeconomic and other development outcomes in rural PNG communities should be seen consistently in both representative and unrepresentative survey samples

Oil Prices and Consumer Spending Yash P. Mehra,2008-10 Empirical evidence suggests that oil price increases have a negative effect on spending whereas oil price declines have no effect The estimated negative effect of an oil price increase on spending is larger if we focus on oil price increases that occur after a period of stable oil prices net oil price increases or if spending includes durables the latter suggesting the possible negative influence of energy prices on the purchase of big ticket consumption goods Furthermore the estimated oil price coefficients in the consumption equation do not show parameter instability during the 1980s the period when oil prices moved widely for the first time in both directions Charts and tables
