Towards an embodied science of intersubjectivity: Widening the scope of social understanding research

Ezequiel Di Paolo, Hanne De Jaegher, 2015-06-16 An important amount of research effort in psychology and neuroscience over the past decades has focused on the problem of social cognition. This problem is understood as how we figure out other minds relying only on indirect manifestations of other people's intentional states which are assumed to be hidden private and internal. Research on this question has mostly investigated how individual cognitive mechanisms achieve this task. A shift in the internalist assumptions regarding intentional states has expanded the research focus with hypotheses that explore the role of interactive phenomena and interpersonal histories and their implications for understanding individual cognitive processes. This interactive expansion of the conceptual and methodological toolkit for investigating social cognition we now propose can be followed by an expansion into wider and deeply related research questions beyond but including that of social cognition narrowly construed. Our social lives are populated by different kinds of cognitive and affective phenomena that are related to but not exhausted by the question of how we figure out other minds. These phenomena include acting and perceiving together, verbal and non-verbal engagement, experiences of disconnection, management of relations in a group, joint meaning making, intimacy, trust, conflict, negotiation, asymmetric relations, material mediation of social interaction, collective action, contextual engagement with socio-cultural norms, structures and roles etc. These phenomena are often characterized by a strong participation by the cognitive agent in contrast with the spectatorial stance typical of social cognition research. We use the broader notion of embodied intersubjectivity to refer to this wider set of phenomena. This Research Topic aims to investigate relations between these different issues to help lay strong foundations for a science of intersubjectivity, the social mind writ large. To contribute to this goal we encouraged contributions in psychology, neuroscience, psychopathology, philosophy and cognitive science that address this wider scope of intersubjectivity by extending the range of explanatory factors from purely individual to interactive, from observational to participatory.

The Natriuretic Hormones Harvey Craig Gonick, Vardaman M. Buckalew, 2015-11-24 The title follows from the original demonstration by Dr Hugh de Wardener in 1961 that a humoral agent is produced after extracellular volume expansion which results in a vigorous diuresis and natriuresis. Thus the name of natriuretic hormone was coined. In the years that followed several investigators pursued the search for the hormone. What resulted however was the discovery of several hormones with different characteristics all of which were natriuretic. Initially it was found that the hormone was similar in action to ouabain or digoxin hence the appellation of ouabain-like or digoxin-like. The hormone was found to be an inhibitor of Na+/K+ ATPase which would fit with it being a cardiotonic steroid. On the other hand neither ouabain or digoxin migrated on Sephadex gel filtration in the same locus as the hormone. Other investigators claim to have identified the hormone initially as a vanadium diascorbate later as bufadienolides such as marinobufagenin yet later as a macrocyclic derivative of inorganic carbon suboxide with a molecular weight of 408 Da. Some support for the latter finding was derived from an earlier report that a semi-purified Sephadex derived compound was found to have a molecular weight of about 12 000 Da but the active compound when split from its carrier protein had a molecular weight of exactly 408 Da This compound had not been further identified As further development was the demonstration by Bricker and colleagues that a natriuretic substance could be purified from uremic urine This turned out to be a xathurenic acid derivative Meanwhile the focus began to turn to natriuretic peptides derived from heart ANF and BNP These peptides have a shorter duration of action than the cardiotonic steroid like hormone and ANF has proved to be most useful as a measure of heart failure It should also be stressed that marinobufagenin like ANF is elevated in congestive heart failure whereas the steroid like hormone is depressed or absent in this state This review will attempt to describe and contrast the properties of each of the proposed natriuretic hormones including their locus on Sephadex separation potency duration of action chemical structure if known behavior in hypertension renal failure heart failure and brain disease As most recent work has focussed on marinobufagenin this hormone will be brought up to date by investigators in the field
