Upda More than Ramps Lisa I. Iezzoni, Bonnie L. O'Day, 2010-04-10. Nearly twenty percent of Americans live today with some sort of disability and this number will grow in coming decades as the population ages. Despite this, the U.S. health care system is not set up to provide care comfortably, safely, and efficiently to persons with disabilities. Individuals with disabilities can therefore face significant barriers to obtaining high quality health care. Some barriers result from obvious impediments such as doors without automatic openers and examining tables that are too high. Other barriers arise from faulty communication between patients and health care professionals, including misconceptions among clinicians about the daily lives, preferences, values, and abilities of persons with disabilities. Yet additional barriers relate to health insurance limits on items and services essential to maximizing health and independence. This book examines the health care experiences of persons who are blind, deaf, hard of hearing, or who have difficulties using their legs, arms, or hands. The book then outlines strategies for overcoming or circumventing barriers to care, starting by just asking persons with disabilities about workable solutions. Creating safe and accessible health care for persons with disabilities will likely benefit everyone at some point. This book has three parts. The first part looks at the historical roots of healthcare access for persons with disabilities in the United States. The second part discusses the current situation and the special challenges for those with disabilities. The third part looks forward to discuss the ways in which healthcare quality and access can improve.

When Walking Fails Lisa Iezzoni, 2003-06-10. Roughly one in ten adult Americans find their walking slowed by progressive chronic conditions like arthritis, back problems, heart and lung diseases, and diabetes. In this passionate and deeply informed book, Lisa I. Iezzoni describes the personal experiences of and societal responses to adults whose mobility makes it difficult for them to live as they wish partly because of physical and emotional conditions and partly because of persisting societal and environmental barriers Basing her conclusions on personal experience a wealth of survey data and extensive interviews with dozens of people from a wide social spectrum Iezzoni explains who has mobility problems and why how mobility difficulties affect people s physical comfort attitudes daily activities and relationships with family and friends throughout their communities strategies for improving mobility and how the health care system addresses mobility difficulties providing and financing services and assistive technologies Iezzoni claims that although strategies exist to improve mobility many people do not know where to turn for advice She addresses the need to inform policymakers about areas where changes will better accommodate people with difficulty walking This straightforward and engaging narrative clearly demonstrates that improving people s ability to move freely and independently will enhance overall health and quality of life not only for these persons but also for society as a whole
