

The Adoption Letter

An adoption letter is probably unlike anything you have ever written. You are not just writing a letter to someone - you are writing to someone you have never met, and perhaps never will meet, with the end goal of raising their child. It is a profound experience for both the prospective parents and the birth mother.

But because of its unique nature, parents going through the adoption process are often unsure of how to approach an adoption letter. "How do we start? What should we say? How much do we write? What if it's not good enough?" Doubts creep up and the letter becomes a daunting task, one that can leave parents up at night trying to complete.

While adoption letters may look intimidating, they are really not so impossible. To help with the adoption letter process, here are three things to remember when writing.

Be Yourself

An adoption letter to a birth mother is a way of introducing yourself without meeting her and a way of connecting the two sides together before the birth. In order to establish a proper connection, it is best to write honestly. The birth mother will connect with your genuine voice and history, not exaggerations or embellishments. Be yourself and you will find the right connection.

Be Positive

An adoption can be a very difficult and emotional time for a birth mother. This is why your letter should be as positive as possible. It should communicate and elucidate the wonderful life you plan to give to a child and how the birth mother would never have to worry about the kind of life her child would have.

Write, Don't List

An adoption letter is not the time to list off qualifications or bullet points as to why you would be a good parent. The letter should be personal and come from the heart, written with love and affection. The purpose of this letter is to show in writing what kind of parent you will be without listing off facts. Some parents tell the story of when they first met each other, or their experiences with adoption. Others will share times of triumph or moments of sorrow, and how

London's Forgotten Children Gillian Pugh, Kate Adie, 2011-11-30 In 1739 the London Foundling Hospital opened its doors to take in the abandoned children of the city. It was the culmination of seventeen years of campaigning by Captain Thomas Coram driven by his horror at seeing children die in the streets. He was supported in his endeavours by a royal charter and by William Hogarth and George Frideric Handel. The Hospital would continue as both home and school for over 215 years raising thousands of children until they could be apprenticed out. London's Forgotten Children is a fascinating history of the first children's charity charting the rise of this incredible institution and examining the attitude towards illegitimate children over the years. The story comes alive with the voices of children who grew up in the Hospital and the concluding fully updated account of today's children's charity. Coram is an ongoing testament to the vision of its founder.

In his honest and heartfelt memoirs he tells the story of his extraordinary journey from the horrors of Nazism to an investigation of modern day genocide. Aged ten Thomas Buergenthal arrived at Auschwitz after surviving the Ghetto of Kielce and two labour camps and was soon separated from his parents. Using his wits and some remarkable strokes of luck he managed to survive until he was liberated from Sachsenhausen in 1945. After experiencing the turmoil of Europe's post war years from the Battle of Berlin to a Jewish orphanage in Poland Buergenthal went to America in the 1950s at the age of seventeen. He eventually became one of the world's leading experts on international law and human rights. His story of survival and his determination to use law and justice to prevent further genocide is an epic and inspirational journey through twentieth century history. His book is both a special historical document and a great literary achievement comparable only to Primo Levi's masterpieces.
