

Four-valve, plus rectifier, two waveband, A.C.-D.C. superheterodyne model. Provision is made for extra low-impedance loudspeaker with across-switch for silencing internal speaker. There are no P.U. sockets. Suitable for operation from A.C. or D.C. mains, 230-250 volts. Made by E. K. Cole Ltd., Service Department, South-on-Sea.

of V1 employs a tuned grid circuit with R1 and C4 the grid leak and condenser. L7 is the MW grid coil and L8 the LW grid coil tuned by VC3 across the tuned grid circuit. L7 is connected across the chassis into a loud speaker, C3, with a variable trimmer, T1, in parallel.

The oscillator anode reaction coil, L1 and L2, are decoupled to chassis through C5, L10 and L11 couple V1 to the grid circuit of the IF amplifier, V2 which also acts as an LF amplifier in a reflex circuit. L10 has a pair of switch contacts across it, which short out on gram.

A second transformer, L12, L13, passes on the signal to the double diode AVC and detector valve, V3. The signal diode of this valve is fed from L13 while the lower end of this coil proceeds via a filter circuit, R11 and C15, to the signal lead R12, which connects to chassis.

From the junction of R11 and R12, LF signals are coupled by C15 and R13 to the volume control R14. The lower end of the volume control element is taken to chassis through C16, which acts as a bypass when the volume control is towards its minimum position.

From the slider of the volume control, R14, the signal is fed to the lower end of

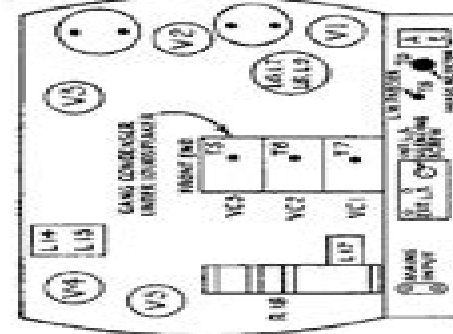

IF valve, which is not sufficient to overcome this bias. The signal is rectified by the signal diode and will therefore not be heard, thus only those transmissions which are of sufficient strength to give reliable programme value above any local background noise will be received, and the adjustment of R10 is made at the receiver locality to give a compromise between background noise and sensitivity.

The LF signal which we have traced as far as the grid of V4 is coupled to the energized impedance loudspeaker by the output transformer L14, L15. A permanent degree of tone correction is effected by C20 connected between the anode and C20 connected between the anode and cathode of V4. The valve is biased by R16 decoupled by C18.

The main input to the receiver is filtered by HF coils L19 and L20 and condensers C22 and C23. The HT circuit is taken through a surge limiter R17 to the anode of the half-wave rectifier valve V5, from the cathode of which the valve V5, from the cathode of which the smoothing choke L17 and condenser C19 and C21 pass the current to the HT line. The field winding of the loudspeaker is connected between the cathode of V1 and chassis.

The heater circuit comprises the main voltage dropping resistance, R18, with the valves and pilot lamps in series. The pilot lamp has a shunt resistance, R19, across it. Two 1 amp fuses are provided for mains protection.

TUNING

IF Circuit—Switch to LW and set tuner to about 1,000 metres. Connect a 0 to 10 mm screw R10 which should be turned to maximum (decrease).

Inject a 10 kc signal into the antenna and earth sockets and adjust T1, T2 and
