This publication considers how to address these challenges by applying the philosophy and techniques of defence systems engineering. Private finance projects and off-balance sheet debt Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Select Committee on Economic Affairs, 2010-03-17 This report recommends a reform of the way financial liabilities arising from private finance projects (PFPs) are treated in public accounts. The Government should publish figures for total PFP liabilities as a separate item alongside figures for public sector net debt. The Committee believes that PFPs' whole life approach to projects in which the private contractor is responsible for long term maintenance as well as construction can have benefits and could be adopted more widely in public procurement. PFPs' scope could be broadened to include the transfer of further risks to the private sector, including those of some mainstream services, for example in the health and education sectors, rather than just ancillary services as at present. The report also deals with the growth in the secondary market for PFPs where investors sell on their stake in a project in many cases once the construction period of that project has been completed. The Committee is concerned that the ability of construction companies to do this might negate one of the key advantages of PFPs over traditional procurement: that the developers have an ongoing responsibility for maintenance and are therefore motivated to use high quality materials and construction processes. The Committee queries some aspects of the value for money tests public authorities are required to undertake when comparing estimates of costs for PFPs with traditional procurement.

Enhancing the Climate Resilience of Africa's Infrastructure Raffaello Cervigni,Rikard Liden,James E. Neumann,Kenneth M. Strzepek,2015-09-01 To sustain Africa s growth and accelerate the eradication of extreme poverty investment in infrastructure is fundamental In 2010 the Africa Infrastructure Country Diagnostic found that to enable Africa to fill its infrastructure gap some US 93 billion per year for the next decade will need to be invested The Program for Infrastructure Development in Africa PIDA endorsed in 2012 by the continent s Heads of State and Government lays out an ambitious long term plan for closing Africa s infrastructure including trough step increases in hydroelectric power generation and water storage capacity Much of this investment will support the construction of long lived infrastructure e g dams power stations irrigation canals which may be vulnerable to changes in climatic patterns the direction and magnitude of which remain significantly uncertain Enhancing the Climate Resilience of Africa s Infrastructure evaluates using for the first time a single consistent methodology and the state of the art climate scenarios the impacts of climate change on hydro power and irrigation expansion plans in Africa's main rivers basins Niger Senegal Volta Congo Nile Zambezi Orange and outlines an approach to reduce climate risks through suitable adjustments to the planning and design process The book finds that failure to integrate climate change in the planning and design of power and water infrastructure could entail in scenarios of drying climate conditions losses of hydropower revenues between 5% and 60% depending on the basin and increases in consumer expenditure for energy up to 3 times the corresponding baseline values In in wet climate scenarios business as usual infrastructure development could lead to foregone revenues in the range of 15% to 130% of the baseline to the extent that the larger volume of precipitation is not used to expand the production of hydropower Despite the large uncertainty on whether drier or wetter conditions will prevail in the future in Africa the book finds that by modifying existing investment plans to explicitly handle the risk of large climate swings can cut in half or more the cost that would accrue by building infrastructure on the basis of the climate of the past
