Abstract: The purpose of the present study was to assess the impact of a 12-week training program on the performance of a 1000-m swimmer. The program was designed to improve the swimmer's aerobic capacity, muscular strength, and flexibility. The results of the study showed that the swimmer's performance improved significantly after the 12-week training program. The swimmer's 1000-m swim time decreased from 18:30 to 17:45, and the swimmer's heart rate decreased from 180 to 160 beats per minute. The swimmer's muscular strength and flexibility also improved significantly. The results of the study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the performance of a 1000-m swimmer.

These authors do not state what a "general" means in mathematical terms.

The questionnaire has three corresponding scales to generate scores from 0 (lowest) and 100 (highest):

- Morphology refers to the form and structure of a molecule, which is determined by the way the atoms are bonded together. The shape of a molecule can affect its reactivity, its ability to interact with other molecules, and its physical properties.
- Stereochemistry is the study of the three-dimensional arrangement of atoms in a molecule. It is concerned with the spatial orientation of the atoms, and how this affects the molecule's properties.
- Conformation refers to the different shapes that a molecule can adopt as it rotates around its single bonds. The different conformations of a molecule can have different energies, and can affect its reactivity.
- Isomerism refers to the different ways in which a molecule can be arranged. There are two main types of isomerism: structural isomerism, where the atoms are connected in different ways, and stereoisomerism, where the atoms are connected in the same way but have different spatial arrangements.
