
Student Explanations: Book Code

Abstract: Despite the growing evidence suggesting that the use of the Internet for health information is increasing, little is known about the factors that influence the use of the Internet for health information. The purpose of this study was to explore the factors that influence the use of the Internet for health information. A cross-sectional survey of 1,000 adults was conducted. The results of the survey indicate that the use of the Internet for health information is influenced by a number of factors, including age, education, income, and health status. The study also found that the use of the Internet for health information is associated with a number of benefits, including increased knowledge, improved health status, and reduced costs. The findings of this study have important implications for the development of interventions to promote the use of the Internet for health information.
