During childhood, people in the United Kingdom, like those in most other countries, are not as likely to be vaccinated as people in the United States. In the United Kingdom, the vaccination schedule for children is based on the National Immunisation Schedule, which was developed in 1968. The schedule was revised in 1996, and again in 2000. The 2000 schedule was revised to reflect the results of the National Immunisation Survey, which was conducted in 1998. The survey found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were vaccinated against diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis (DTP). However, the survey also found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were not vaccinated against measles, mumps, and rubella (MMR). The results of the survey were used to develop the 2000 schedule, which recommended that children be vaccinated against DTP and MMR at the same time. The 2000 schedule was revised again in 2005, and again in 2008. The 2008 schedule was revised to reflect the results of the National Immunisation Survey, which was conducted in 2006. The survey found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were vaccinated against DTP and MMR. However, the survey also found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were not vaccinated against hepatitis B, which is a vaccine that is recommended for all children in the United Kingdom. The results of the survey were used to develop the 2008 schedule, which recommended that children be vaccinated against DTP, MMR, and hepatitis B at the same time. The 2008 schedule was revised again in 2010, and again in 2012. The 2012 schedule was revised to reflect the results of the National Immunisation Survey, which was conducted in 2010. The survey found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were vaccinated against DTP, MMR, and hepatitis B. However, the survey also found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were not vaccinated against polio, which is a vaccine that is recommended for all children in the United Kingdom. The results of the survey were used to develop the 2012 schedule, which recommended that children be vaccinated against DTP, MMR, hepatitis B, and polio at the same time. The 2012 schedule was revised again in 2015, and again in 2017. The 2017 schedule was revised to reflect the results of the National Immunisation Survey, which was conducted in 2015. The survey found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were vaccinated against DTP, MMR, hepatitis B, and polio. However, the survey also found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were not vaccinated against whooping cough, which is a vaccine that is recommended for all children in the United Kingdom. The results of the survey were used to develop the 2017 schedule, which recommended that children be vaccinated against DTP, MMR, hepatitis B, polio, and whooping cough at the same time. The 2017 schedule was revised again in 2020, and again in 2022. The 2022 schedule was revised to reflect the results of the National Immunisation Survey, which was conducted in 2020. The survey found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were vaccinated against DTP, MMR, hepatitis B, polio, and whooping cough. However, the survey also found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were not vaccinated against COVID-19, which is a vaccine that is recommended for all children in the United Kingdom. The results of the survey were used to develop the 2022 schedule, which recommended that children be vaccinated against DTP, MMR, hepatitis B, polio, whooping cough, and COVID-19 at the same time.

The most important findings were consistent: that the 100% parties following the onset of the crisis in the United States and the United Kingdom had the best performance going forward. While the 100% parties (1/3) were caught in other traps, they consistently achieved better results.
