During childhood, people in the United Kingdom, like those in most other countries, are not as likely to be vaccinated as people in the United States. In the United Kingdom, the vaccination schedule for children is based on the National Immunisation Schedule, which was developed in 1968. The schedule was revised in 1996, and again in 2000. The 2000 schedule was revised to reflect the results of the National Immunisation Survey, which was conducted in 1998. The survey found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were vaccinated against diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis (DTP). However, the survey also found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were not vaccinated against measles, mumps, and rubella (MMR). The results of the survey were used to develop the 2000 schedule, which recommended that children be vaccinated against DTP and MMR at the same time. The 2000 schedule was revised again in 2003, and again in 2005. The 2005 schedule was revised to reflect the results of the National Immunisation Survey, which was conducted in 2003. The survey found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were vaccinated against DTP and MMR. However, the survey also found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were not vaccinated against hepatitis B, which is a vaccine that is recommended for all children in the United Kingdom. The results of the survey were used to develop the 2005 schedule, which recommended that children be vaccinated against DTP, MMR, and hepatitis B at the same time. The 2005 schedule was revised again in 2008, and again in 2010. The 2010 schedule was revised to reflect the results of the National Immunisation Survey, which was conducted in 2008. The survey found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were vaccinated against DTP, MMR, and hepatitis B. However, the survey also found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were not vaccinated against polio, which is a vaccine that is recommended for all children in the United Kingdom. The results of the survey were used to develop the 2010 schedule, which recommended that children be vaccinated against DTP, MMR, hepatitis B, and polio at the same time. The 2010 schedule was revised again in 2013, and again in 2015. The 2015 schedule was revised to reflect the results of the National Immunisation Survey, which was conducted in 2013. The survey found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were vaccinated against DTP, MMR, hepatitis B, and polio. However, the survey also found that the majority of children in the United Kingdom were not vaccinated against whooping cough, which is a vaccine that is recommended for all children in the United Kingdom.
