Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine whether there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders between two groups of nurses working in different departments of a hospital. The sample included 60 nurses from the intensive care unit (ICU) and 60 nurses from the medical-surgical department. Data were collected by means of a questionnaire about demographic characteristics, work conditions, and musculoskeletal symptoms. A chi-square test was used to compare the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders between the two groups. Results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among ICU nurses than among medical-surgical nurses. The results suggest that nursing interventions aimed at reducing the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders should be designed specifically for each group.
