Three months have passed since I first started the ethnography project. During the three month, I have studied and researched about an aviation fraternity called Alpha Eta Rho (AHP) and participating aviation students in University of Illinois. The project opened up an opportunity to meet people whose career field is drastically different from my own. As I expected, they were not romanticists who want to fly away like some E.T. character, but determined individuals with strong willpower and firm. At least once in his or her lifetime, everyone has a dream, whether the dream turns out to be unachievable or flaccid. In order to achieve the dream, one requires firm determination that helps to surmount all the obstacles one may face in the process.

I remember with embarrassment, that in the beginning, I was clueless to how I should approach this project. I was ignorant to the fact that there are two kinds of AHP meeting: official and unofficial meeting. The official AHP meeting is held every other Thursday at 7 P.M, and unofficial meeting, called "hang-out day", is held on Thursdays that do not have a scheduled meeting. When I attended the AHP official meeting for the first time, I was confused. Not knowing exactly what I needed to do, I did not know I needed to take notes even on tedious talks. As a result, I had really hard time writing the final paper; I had to squeeze out any possible information from my memory and the tape recorder I brought to the meeting. As it turns out, tape-recording everything at all was unintentional yet immensely fortunate move. As time passed by, I saw other students' field notes, which included every single tiny detail. From this experience, I learned to know how to take a "good" field note. The field description I had taken previous to the spring break and after the break shows great improvement in observations. As the first two pages in the portfolio reveal, I only involved myself in Experimental Writing in Composition Patricia Suzanne Sullivan, 2012-12-15 From the outset experimental writing has been viewed as a means to afford a more creative space for students to express individuality underrepresented social realities and criticisms of dominant socio political discourses and their institutions Yet the recent trend toward multimedia texts has left many composition instructors with little basis from which to assess these new forms and to formulate pedagogies In this original study Patricia Suzanne Sullivan provides a critical history of experimental writing theory and its aesthetic foundations and demonstrates their application to current multimodal writing Sullivan unpacks the work of major scholars in composition and rhetoric and their theories on aesthetics particularly avant gardism She also relates the dialectics that shape these aesthetics and sheds new light on both the positive and negative aspects of experimental writing and its attempts to redefine the writing disciplines Additionally she shows how current debates over the value of multimedia texts echo earlier arguments that pitted experimental writing against traditional models Sullivan further articulates the ways that multimedia is and isn't changing composition pedagogies and provides insights into resolving these tensions A New

Writing Classroom Patrick Sullivan, 2014-07-15 In A New Writing Classroom Patrick Sullivan provides a new generation of teachers a means and a rationale to reconceive their approach to teaching writing calling into question the discipline's dependence on argument Including secondary writing teachers within his purview Sullivan advocates a more diverse exploratory and flexible approach to writing activities in grades six through thirteen A New Writing Classroom encourages teachers to pay more attention to research in learning theory transfer of learning international models for nurturing excellence in the classroom and recent work in listening to teach students the sort of dialogic stance that leads to higher order thinking and more sophisticated communication The conventional argumentative essay is often a simplistic form of argument widely believed to be the most appropriate type of writing in English classes but other kinds of writing may be more valuable to students and offer more important kinds of cognitive challenges Focusing on listening and dispositions or habits of mind as central elements of this new composition pedagogy A New Writing Classroom draws not just on composition studies but also on cognitive psychology philosophy learning theory literature and history making an exciting and significant contribution to the field Handbook on Assessments for Gifted Learners Susan K.
