

Tigers | Nonfiction Reading Test 2

Who would win in a fight, a lion or a tiger? Well, it does not anything to do with the matter, the tiger would win. That's because tigers are the largest of all the species. They grow up to nearly four long and weigh as much as 600 lbs. The male tigers have short striped band markings. The only larger land mammals are polar bears and brown bears. Tigers are not only large, they are also fast. They can sprint as fast as 40 miles per hour for short distances and leap as far as 30 feet horizontally. This makes the surprisingly dangerous predator. You might not think that such large, fast, bloodthirsty creatures must be very vicious, but they are. The tiger is an endangered animal.

Despite all of the tiger's strength, the status of the species is uncertain. Tigers face a very high risk of extinction. It is estimated that at the start of the 20th century, there were over 100,000 tigers living in the wild. By the end of the century, the number of tigers was down to approximately 3,000. Unfortunately, the most serious threats that tigers face come from man. In the past, people have used tigers for medicine and as trophies. In the past, people have used tigers for medicine and as trophies. In the past, people have used tigers for medicine and as trophies.

Tigers are hunted for many reasons. People have long valued the beautiful striped skins. Although tigers were once found in many parts of the world, tiger skins are now mostly found in the Indian market. Though the skin would be valuable enough for many people, other parts of the tiger are also found in many places. Some people use tiger bones and other parts to make medicine. In China, tiger bones are used to make medicine. In China, tiger bones are used to make medicine. In China, tiger bones are used to make medicine.

Tigers have also been hunted as game. In other words, people hunt tigers for fun. The skins are sold to people who want to keep them. Some people use tiger skins to make coats. Some people use tiger skins to make coats. Some people use tiger skins to make coats. Some people use tiger skins to make coats. Some people use tiger skins to make coats.

Humans have done considerable damage to the world's tiger population through hunting, but perhaps more damage has been caused through the destruction of habitat. Tigers once ranged widely across Asia, all the way from Turkey to the eastern coast of Russia. But over the past 100 years, tigers have lost 95% of their natural range. Instead of spreading all over very much Asia, the tiger population is now limited to small pockets in South and Southeast Asia. This is because humans have drastically changed the environment. Humans have built towns and cities. Roads and small systems were created to connect these towns and cities. To find the people living in these towns, forests and fields have been cleared or destroyed. Large areas of land have been destroyed to plant crops and other valuable land is being destroyed. All of these activities have caused humans to lose their natural habitat.

A major obstacle to restoring tigers to the enormous amount of territory that each tiger requires. Each wild tiger demands between 700 and 900 square miles. Tigers are also very territorial and solitary animals. This means that they are protective of the area that they inhabit and they generally do not share with other tigers. Because tigers need so much territory, it is difficult for conservationists to acquire land enough to support a large population of tigers. Even when such large tracts of land are acquired, it is not easy to protect such large areas from poachers. Poachers are very easy to protect from tiger populations without making large sacrifices.
