Environmental Compliance Guide for Facility Managers and Engineers Rengasamy

Kasinathan, 2022-07-29 A practical guide for facility engineers and managers to understand the impact of environmental regulations when applied to operating equipment in any industry or facility. It lays out a clear road map on how to learn the essential steps and how to use the proper tools. Based on the author's 39-year experience, this concise material discusses real-life applications and case studies adopted and implemented successfully in many NYC facilities and is appropriate for large cities. It will help facility engineers comply with various rules and regulations of the jurisdictions of EPA, state, city, and local agencies and properly itemize reporting requirements. Features include: Guides facility engineers and managers with a clear and logical exposition of topics, developments, and valuable regulatory frameworks for appropriate preparation and compliance. Provides detailed explanations of procedures for emission reduction and improved efficiency and productivity. Emphasizes the importance of continuing education in compliance to prevent high penalties for facilities. Includes real-life applications and case studies on reducing energy baseline and current operating methods, providing formulas and calculations. Addresses regulatory knowledge for operating systems in cities with a dense population in the US and countries with similar regulatory frameworks. This book will benefit professionals: engineers, facility and project managers, building and grounds supervisors, code compliance managers, and heating, ventilation, air conditioning (HVAC) systems contractors and installers in hospitals, universities, schools, and other facilities. Deep Energy Retrofit Alexander Zhivov, Rüdiger

Lohse, 2020-07-13 This book provides detailed information on how to set up Deep Energy Retrofits (DERs) in public buildings and shares in-depth insights into the current status of the major technologies, strategies, and best practice examples of how to cost-effectively combine them. Case studies from the U.S.A. and Europe show that Deep Energy Retrofit can be achieved with a limited core technologies bundle readily available on the market. Characteristics of some of these core technology measures depend on the technologies available on an individual nation's market, on the minimum requirements of national standards, and on economics as determined by a life cycle cost analysis. Also, requirements to building envelope-related technologies, e.g., insulation levels, windows, vapor and water barriers, and requirements for building airtightness depend on specific climate conditions. This Guide provides best practice examples of how to apply these technologies in different construction situations. High levels of energy use reduction using core technology bundles along with improvements in indoor climate and thermal comfort can be only achieved when a Deep Energy Retrofit adopts a quality assurance process. In addition to design, construction, commissioning, and post-occupancy phases of the quality assurance process, the Guide emphasizes the importance of clearly and concisely formulating and documenting the Owner's goals, expectations, and requirements for the renovated building during development of the statement of work. Another important component of the quality assurance process is a procurement phase during which bidders' qualifications, their understanding of the scope of work, and its requirements, and their previous experience are analyzed. The building sector holds the potential for tremendous improvements in terms of energy efficiency and reducing carbon emissions and energy retrofits to the existing building stock represent a significant opportunity in the transition to a low carbon future Moreover investing in highly efficient building materials and systems can replace long term energy imports contribute to cost cutting and create a wealth of new jobs Yet while the technologies needed in order to improve energy efficiency are readily available significant progress has not yet been made and best practices for implementing building technologies and renewable energy sources are still relegated to small niche applications Offering essential information on Deep Energy Retrofits the book offers a valuable asset for architects public authorities project developers and engineers alike

Building Regulations in Brief Ray Tricker, Rozz Algar, 2007 Building Regulations in Brief cuts through the confusion to explain the meaning of the regulations their history current status requirements associated documentation and how local authorities view their importance as well as emphasising the benefits and requirements of each regulation

The Building Regulations 2000 Stationery Office, 2010-06-04 The new Part L2B will require a 25% improvement on the 2006 standards for every new home An aggregate approach for improvements of new non domestic buildings will deliver an improvement of 25% overall rather than for each individual building This is due to the fact that there is a greater variety amongst non domestic buildings and some will be much easier than others to make efficient The changes to Part L will increase the minimum levels of energy efficiency for building fabric and services so that CO2 targets cannot be achieved through renewables alone This reflects the principles of reducing overall demand for energy The measures will also be relevant when people elect to carry out work to existing buildings including extensions and conversions fabric renovations replacement windows and boilers This Approved Document L2B 2010 comes into force October 2010 in support of the Building Regulations 2000 The Approved Documents provide technical guidance on ways of complying with the Building Regulations They are continuously revised in line with new legislations
