Forged in War R. David Lankes, 2021-05-15 I deal for readers seeking a more comprehensive look at information dissemination technology its context and its impact on the way in which we now live Library Journal Starred Review Many of what we think of as Information Age tools and media computers cell phones the internet encryption and more evolved directly out of modern warfare These tools started with World War I which began not with arms but with England cutting off underwater cables to Germany and isolating it accelerated through World War II and the Cold War and now play a center

role in both declared and non declared conflicts like election interference and cyberbattles We buy phones and smart speakers because they are new and unlock great potential Voice assistants like Siri and Alexa help us do our work and answer that one piece of trivia that bugs us Yet these devices are data gatherers They collect repackaged and monetize our questions purchases photographs web surfing to form a data industry now larger than the oil industry Well over 100 years ago the data industry put in place a business model that trades our attention for news and entertainment That model has evolved into a complex art and science of message targeting and content ownership that has splintered communities while simultaneously concentrating media ownership to a few massive corporations Forged in War takes a critical look at the systems we use and how we ended up in a society that values data over personal liberty and commerce over the public good It tells a compelling and previously untold story of how our ideas of information and knowledge reflect the century of war that has militarized our worldview Author David Lankes's work has been funded by organizations such as The MacArthur Foundation The Institute for Library and Museum Services NASA The U S Department of Education The U S Department of Defense The National Science Foundation and The U S State Department This his latest book will help all of us learn how war has shaped our world and how to begin to create an agenda to stand down weaponized data and a media that seeks to own our personal even intimate data like one owns a gold mine

Changing Media, Homes and Households Deborah Chambers, 2016-04-14 Media technologies have played a central role in shaping ideas about home life over the last two centuries Changing Media Homes and Households explores the complex relationship between home householders families and media technologies by charting the evolution of the media rich home from the early twentieth century to the present Moving beyond a narrow focus on media texts production and audiences Deborah Chambers investigates the physical presence of media objects in the home and their symbolic importance for home life The book identifies the role of home based media in altering relationships between home leisure work and the outside world in the context of entertainment communication and work It assesses whether domestic media are transforming or reinforcing traditional identities and relations of gender generation class and migrancy Mediatization theory is employed to assess the domestication of media and media saturation of home life in the context of wider global changes The author also develops the concept of media imaginaries to explain the role of public discourses in shaping changing meanings values and uses of domestic media Framed within these approaches four chapters also provide in depth case studies of the processes involved in media's home adoption early television design family centred video gaming the domestication of tablet computers and the shift from smart homes to today's connected homes This is an ideal text for students and researchers interested in media and cultural studies communication and sociology
