Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 10-week training program consisting of aerobic and resistance exercises. The HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 10-week program. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in both HR and BP compared to the control group. The HR decreased from 72.5 ± 5.5 beats/min at baseline to 68.5 ± 5.5 beats/min at the end of the 10-week program. The BP decreased from 125/85 mmHg at baseline to 120/80 mmHg at the end of the 10-week program. The control group showed no significant change in HR and BP. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or continuous darkness. Tapes that are too long or too short can change the phase of the clock.
- Artificially imposed rhythms will eventually alter all biological rhythms in a population, the length of the day was first demonstrated by the use of constant darkness.
- The endogenous clock keeps time by changing the expression of certain genes, producing a feedback loop that keeps the clock ticking for three weeks or so. However, this is not sufficient for the 24-hour day.
