Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CON) and an exercise group (EX). The EX group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic and resistance training. The CON group remained sedentary. The EX group showed a significant increase in HR and EE compared to the CON group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve cardiovascular fitness and increase energy expenditure in sedentary, middle-aged women.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light in commercial greenhouses. Likewise, plants are flowering the opposite way (e.g., in the middle of the night).
- Increased moisture in the soil will compete with the salt for absorption by the roots. The length of the growing season may be extended by the use of plastic mulch and irrigation.
- The soil pH can be lowered by the use of sulfur. However, the pH should not be lowered below 5.5, as this may increase the availability of toxic elements in the soil.
- Some plants are more tolerant of these stresses than others. For example, tomato is more tolerant of the high salt levels.
