

Sequence of Operation

NOTE: The following sequence is pre-programmed into the EA150 Engine Automatic.

Operation Sequence with Panel in Auto

When the EA150 receives an automatic start signal the engine will begin to crank and the Shutdown Lockout time delay will begin. The Shutdown Lockout Delay does two functions. It allows the EA150 to disregard signals from the low oil pressure and high temperature SWITCH-GAGE® at engine start-up. Also, if the engine false starts, the re-crank will be delayed to allow the engine to stop moving before engaging the starter. If the engine fails to start after the set number of crank and rest attempts, the EA150 will indicate an overcrank condition by turning on the Overcrank LED. The engine will be locked out from any further start attempts.

NOTE: All shutdown conditions can be reset by moving the selector switch into the OFF position and back into the AUTO position.

Once Crank Disconnect speed is reached the Engine Running LED will turn on. The engine will also run at full governed speed while in operation. If the engine speed exceeds the Overspeed setpoint, the EA150 will initiate an engine shutdown and Overspeed LED will turn on. The engine will be locked out from any further start attempts.

If a low oil pressure or high temperature condition occurs while the engine is running, the EA150 will shutdown the engine and the appropriate LED will turn on. The engine will be locked out from any further start attempts.

NOTE: The Shutdown Lockout Delay must have expired to get a shutdown on low oil pressure and high temperature.

Operation Sequence with Panel in Test

When the selector switch is placed in the TEST position, an automatic start signal is simulated. Therefore, the controller will operate the same as it does in AUTO. However, it will continue to run as long as there are no signals from monitored conditions or until the selector switch is moved to the AUTO or OFF positions. Keep in mind, it will still shutdown the engine if a monitored condition occurs such as low oil pressure or high temperature.
