Nagothu, 2016-07-15 Two of the greatest current challenges are climate change and variability and food security Feeding nine billion people by 2050 will require major efforts aimed at climate change adaptation and mitigation One approach to agriculture has recently been captured by the widely adopted term of Climate Smart Agriculture CSA This book not only explains what this entails but also presents practical on the ground studies of practices and innovations in agriculture across a broader spectrum including agroecology and conservation agriculture in less developed countries It is shown that CSA is not a completely new science and a number of its recommended technologies have been used for some time by local farmers all over the world What is relevant and new is the approach to exploit their adaptation and mitigation potential However a major limitation is the lack of evidence based knowledge that is necessary for policy makers to prepare strategies for adaptation and mitigation This book assembles knowledge of CSA agroecology and conservation agriculture and perspectives from different regions of the world to build resilient food systems The first part analyzes the concept opportunities and challenges and provides a global perspective drawing particularly on studies from Africa and Asia The second part of the book showcases results from various studies linked to soil water and crop management measures from an ongoing program in India as well as experiences from other regions The third section assesses the needs for an enabling policy environment mainstreaming gender and some final recommendations for up scaling and or out scaling innovations Informal Sector Innovations Mammo Muchie, Saradindu Bhaduri, Angathevar Baskaran, Fayaz Sheikh, 2017-10-02 It is well documented that the space of informal economic activity is rising across the globe This rise has been particularly significant in the least developed and developing countries especially after the onset of neo liberal policies and withdrawal of welfare state There has also been a shift in academic thinking on informal sector with attempts being made to understand the contribution of informal sector in generating employment and economic growth rather than focusing solely on exploitative labour conditions in these economic activities Indeed with the retreat of welfare state and the introduction of contract labour in the formal sector many issues related to occupational hazards and improper labour conditions do not remain unique to the informal sectors of the economy particularly in less developed countries This volume addresses a specific concern the issue of knowledge generation and innovative activities which lies at the core of sustained competitive advantage of these activities The chapters in this book were originally published in the African Journal of Science Technology Innovation and Development

Tourism Planning and Development in South Asia Dimitrios Styliadis, Boopen Seetanah, 2021-04-09 Tourism has huge significance as a global economic and social phenomenon and given the growing reliance on the industry by service dependent economies around the world the lack of focus on tourism planning and development in South Asia is surprising Current issues including social environmental and cultural aspects underpinned by security challenges have defined the tourism development narratives in many South Asian countries over the last decades and lead to fluid demand and supply patterns The appetite for and reliance on tourism growth is seen regardless of the numerous challenges faced by the region Despite a rich and steady history of tourism and demand driven by numerous pull destinations most South Asian countries have not invested or benefitted from global tourism growth trends Spatial Approaches in African Archaeology Cameron Gokee, Carla Klehm, 2023-01-01 This book explores the interplay between African archaeology and geospatial methods from three broad perspectives First several contributors examine the technical possibilities and limits of using satellite imagery to detect archaeological sites and model their physical environs A second perspective is the integration of new geospatial data and methods into site and landscape scale analyses to better address questions about social organization and subjective experience in African pasts A final perspective considers the interplay between geospatial technologies and community archaeology in Africa Recognizing that GIS and RS supersede traditional divisions in African archaeology such as different periods geographic regions and theoretical orientations the chapters aim to be widely applicable Arranged by methodological emphasis the case studies move from technical discussions of specific geospatial tools to general applications for addressing specific sociohistorical topics Each chapter clearly explains the links between their archaeological questions and analytical methods as well as how their results advance our understanding of African pasts and heritage resources Many of the chapters can serve as learning models for archaeologists who are new to GIS or curious about its applications to their work Others represent recent advances in geospatial applications of greater interest to more seasoned GIS practitioners demonstrating the potential for African scholarship to contribute to methodological innovations This book is of interest to students and researchers of African and historical archaeology and anthropology Previously published in African Archaeological Review Volume 37 issue 1 March 2020 Grounding Global Climate Change Heike Greschke, Julia Tischler, 2014-09-25 This book traces the evolution of climate change research which long dominated by the natural sciences now sees greater involvement with disciplines studying the socio cultural implications of change In their introduction the editors chart the changing role of the social and cultural sciences delineating three strands of research socio critical approaches which connect climate change to a call for cultural or systemic change a mitigation and adaption strand which takes the physical reality of climate change as a starting point and focuses on the concerns of climate change affected communities and their participation in political action and finally culture sensitive research which places emphasis on indigenous peoples who contribute the least to the causes of climate change who are affected most by its consequences and who have the least leverage to influence a solution Part I of the book explores interdisciplinarity climate research and the role of the social sciences including the concept of ecological novelty an assessment of progress since the first Rio climate conference and a global village case study from Portugal Part II surveys ethnographic perspectives in the search for social facts of global climate change including climate and mobility in the West African Sahel and human non human interactions and climate change in the Canadian Subarctic Part III shows how collaborative and comparative ethnographies can spin global webs of local knowledge describing case studies of changing seasonality in Labrador and of rising water levels in the Chesapeake Bay These perspectives are subjected to often amusing always incisive analysis in a concluding chapter entitled You Ain t Seen Nothing Yet a death defying look at the future of the climate debate The contributors engage critically with the research subject of climate change itself reflecting on their own practices of knowledge production and epistemological presuppositions Finely detailed and sympathetic to a broad range of viewpoints the book sets out a profile for the social sciences and humanities in the climate change field by systematically exploring methodological and theoretical challenges and approaches
