Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CG) and an exercise group (EG). The EG performed a 10-week training program consisting of 3 sessions per week of 30 min of aerobic exercise at 70% of their maximum heart rate. The CG did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during a 30-min submaximal exercise test at the beginning and at the end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the EG had a significant decrease in HR and HRR at rest and during exercise compared to the CG. The decrease in HR and HRR was greater in the EG than in the CG. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.
