and drugs enabling our current state of mass incarceration and further entrenching the nation's racialized policing and punishment. After examining how the criminal justice system conceptualized the benefits of computers to surveil criminalized populations, Jefferson focuses on New York City and Chicago to provide a grounded account of the deployment of digital computing in urban police departments. By highlighting the intersection of policing and punishment with big data and web technology resulting in the development of the criminal justice system's latest tool, crime data centers, Digitize and Punish makes clear the extent to which digital technologies have transformed and intensified the nature of carceral power.
