Beyond Technonationalism Kathryn C. Iбата-Arens, 2019-04-16 The biomedical industry which includes biopharmaceuticals genomics and stem cell therapies and medical devices is among the fastest growing worldwide While it has been an economic development target of many national governments Asia is currently on track to reach the epicenter of this growth What accounts for the rapid and sustained economic growth of biomedical in Asia To answer this question Kathryn Iбата Arens integrates global and national data with original fieldwork to present a conceptual framework that considers how national governments have managed key factors like innovative capacity government policy and firm level strategies Taking China India Japan and Singapore in turn she compares each country s underlying competitive advantages What emerges is an argument that countries pursuing networked technonationalism NTN effectively upgrade their capacity for innovation and encourage entrepreneurial activity in targeted industries In contrast to countries that engage in classic technonationalism like Japan s developmental state approach networked technonationalists are global minded to outside markets while remaining nationalistic within the domestic economy By bringing together aggregate data at the global and national level with original fieldwork and drawing on rich cases Iбата Arens telegraphs implications for innovation policy and entrepreneurship strategy in Asia and beyond Routledge Handbook of Global Health Security Simon Rushton, Jeremy Youde, 2014-08-07 This new Handbook presents an overview of cutting edge research in the growing field of global health security Over the past decade the study of global health and its interconnection with security has become a prominent and rapidly growing field of research Ongoing debates question whether health and security should be linked which if any health issues should be treated as security threats what should be done to address health security threats and the positive and negative consequences of securitizing health In academic and policy terms the health security field is a timely and dynamic one and this handbook will be the first work comprehensively to address this agenda Bringing together the leading experts and commentators on health security issues from across the world the volume comprises original and cutting edge essays addressing the key issues in the field and also highlighting currently neglected avenues for future research The book intends to provide an accessible yet sophisticated introduction to the key topics and debates and is organised into four key parts Health Securities the fundamental conceptual issues historical links between health and security and the various ways of conceptualising health as a security issue Threats those health issues which have been most frequently discussed in security terms Responses the wide range of contemporary security driven responses to health threats Controversies the securitization of health its impact on rights and justice and the potential distortion of the global health agenda This book will be of great interest to students of global health security public health critical security studies and International Relations in general Linking Teacher Preparation Program Design and Implementation to Outcomes for Teachers and Students Jennifer E. Carinci, Cara Jackson, Stephen J. Meyer, 2020-02-01 Improving the use of evidence in teacher preparation is one of the greatest challenges and opportunities for our field The chapters in this volume explore how data availability quality and use within and across preparation programs shed light on the structures policies and practices associated with high quality teacher preparation Chapter authors take on critical questions about the connection between what takes place during teacher preparation and subsequent outcomes for teachers and students which has remained a black box for too long Despite a long history of teacher preparation in the U S and a considerable investment in preservice and in service training much is still to be learned about how pre service preparation impacts teacher effectiveness A strong empirical basis that informs how specific aspects of and approaches to teacher preparation relate to outcomes for graduates and their preK 12 student outcomes will provide a foundation for improved teaching and learning Our book responds to stakeholders collective responsibility to students and teachers to act more deliberately Issues of data availability and quality the uses of data for improvement priorities for future research and opportunities to promote evidence use in teacher preparation are discussed throughout the volume to inspire collective action to push the field towards more use of evidence Chapters present research that uses a variety of research designs methodologies and data sources to explore important questions about the relationship between teacher preparation inputs and outcomes New Paradigms in Ergonomics Neville A. Stanton, Paul M. Salmon, Guy Walker, 2020-04-28 The systems in which we work continue to evolve creating emergent problems and often strengthening intractable issues In order to remain relevant and impactful the discipline of ergonomics needs its paradigms to evolve too The aim of this book is to provide researchers and practitioners with new paradigms in the form of ideas concepts theories methods practices and values The chapters take the reader on a journey through underlying theories new ways to apply those theories and emerging domains in which ergonomics is expected to play a greater role Readers of this book will be inspired by these new paradigms in ergonomics and seek to push the boundaries even further The lifeblood of the science depends on continual evolution and developments to take on the challenges we face in complex sociotechnical systems design and evaluation Perhaps the most significant take home message from this book is the demonstration of how theory maps onto practice As such the only remaining paradigm shift is for these ideas concepts methods and practices to be taken up more widely and the discipline advanced until the next paradigm shift occurs The chapters were originally published as a special issue in the journal Ergonomics

The Art of Screen Time Anya Kamenetz, 2018-01-30 Finally an evidence based reassuring guide to what to do about kids and screens from video games to social media Today's babies often make their debut on social media with the very first sonogram They begin interacting with screens at around four months old But is this good news or bad news A wonderful opportunity to connect around the world Or the first step in creating a generation of addled screen zombies Many have been quick to declare this the dawn of a neurological and emotional crisis but solid science on the subject is surprisingly hard to come by In The Art of Screen Time Anya Kamenetz an expert on education and technology as well as a mother of two young children takes a refreshingly practical look at the subject Surveying hundreds of fellow parents on their practices and ideas and cutting through a thicket of inconclusive studies and overblown claims she hones a simple message a riff on Michael Pollan's well known food rules Enjoy Screens Not too much Mostly with others This brief but powerful dictum forms the backbone of a philosophy that will help parents moderate technology in their children's lives curb their own anxiety and create room for a happy healthy family life with and without screens

Improving household consumption and expenditure surveys' food consumption metrics Fiedler, John L., Mwangi, Dena M., 2016-11-18 As the nature of global malnutrition changes there is a growing need and increasing urgency for more and better information about food consumption and dietary patterns The past two decades have seen a dramatic increase in the number availability and analysis of the food consumption data collected in a variety of multipurpose household surveys referred to collectively as household consumption and expenditure surveys HCESs These surveys are heterogeneous and their quality varies substantially by country Still they share some common shortcomings in their measurement of food consumption nutrient intakes and nutrition status that undermine their relevance and reliability for purposes of designing and implementing food policies and programs This review crafts a strategic approach to the unfinished global agenda of improving HCESs collection of food consumption data Starting with the priority studies recommended by a 100 country HCES review Smith Dupriez and Troubat 2014 it focuses on a strategic subset of those studies that deal most directly and exclusively with the measurement of food and that are of fundamental importance to all HCES stakeholders in low and middle income countries Drawing from the literature this study provides a more detailed more circumspect justification as to why these particular studies are needed while identifying key hypotheses explaining why these studies are of growing urgency and demonstrating why now is a propitious time for undertaking them The review also identifies important study design considerations while pointing out potential challenges to successful implementation stemming from technical capacity economic administrative and political considerations Six key studies are rank ordered from a global perspective as follows taking into account 1 the likely shared consensus that a topic is an important source of measurement error in estimating consumption 2 the perceived urgency of the need for addressing a particular source of measurement error 3 the perceived likelihood of success that is that the efforts will improve the accuracy of measurement 4 whether or not the study entails modifying the questionnaire 5 the ease with which a study may begin and 6 the extent to which the study is independent of necessary negotiations with existing HCES stakeholders because of the types of changes it is likely to entail in either the questionnaire or the way the data have traditionally been processed
