1. Read the following text and answer the questions no. A and B :

The famous Greek philosopher Aristotle said, 'Man is by nature a social animal.' What he meant was that man, by instinct, seeks company of others and establishes relationships, much like most animals of the wild, for companionship and for physical and emotional support. Unlike the animals, however, man's relationships give meaning to his existence and inspire him to do well in education, in workplace or in a profession that he pursues. Relationships are of different kinds. Some are familial and intimate, formed by blood and by marriage; some are social like the ones we have with friends and some are made in school where we form close bonds with classmates and teachers. Relationships can also be fostered in workplace, which may quickly change from professional to social. There are relationships also between human beings and animals, between children and their toys that they cannot part with.

All these relationships keep us close to each other and provide us all kinds of support, love and affection. A person who has no family feels the pain of loneliness and isolation. There is no one to laugh or cry with him/her. When we share our joy with someone, it simply redoubles, and when we suffer a loss and someone shares our sorrow, it lessens. Relationships are thus needed for our emotional health.

To build relationships, we need to have trust and respect for each other, and love where this is needed. We cannot be selfish and possessive if we want to establish an effective relationship. But quite often we see people quarrelling and fighting with each other which only brings misery and loss to all.

Chaudhury, 2022-03-07 The book seeks to situate caste as a discursive category in the discussion of Partition in Bengal In conventional narratives of Partition the role of the Dalit or the Scheduled Castes is either completely ignored or mentioned in passing The authors address this discursive absence and argues that in Bengal the Dalits were neither passive onlookers nor accidental victims of Partition politics and violence which ruptured their unity and weakened their political autonomy They were the worst victims of Partition When the Dalit peasants of Eastern Bengal began to migrate to India after 1950 they were seen as the burden of a frail economy of West Bengal and the Indian state did not provide them with a proper rehabilitation package They were first segregated in fenced refugee camps where life was unbearable and then dispersed to other parts of India first to the Andaman Islands and the neighbouring states and then to the inhospitable terrains of Dandakaranya where they could be used as cheap labour for various development projects This book looks critically at their participation in Partition politics the reasons for their migration three years after Partition their insufferable life and struggles in the refugee camps their negotiations with caste and gender identities in these new environments their organized protests against camp maladministration and finally their satyagraha campaigns against the Indian state s refugee dispersal policy This book looks at how refugee politics impacted Dalit identity and protest movements in post Partition West Bengal
