The Prothymus are common to the greater portion of the region, and particularly of those stations with permanent inundation. If a fairly large colony has been secured, it may be known from the following characters: It has small, thin legs (the males) and body more rounded than the commonest, and it is not too fast-footed, gregarious, nor the personality of a Prothymus (see note under the argenteus and, if necessary, the capitulum characters).
