Amending the Constitution

The Constitution is the legal document that contains the rules and regulations that govern the conducts of individuals within a given society (Harrison et al, 2010). However, due to the dynamism of the society and culture, it is essential for the law to be flexible in order to reflect these changes. It is thus as a result of this that the Constitution has to be amended to meet the changing needs and desires of the people whom it governs.

In USA, Article V of the Constitution governs the process of amending the Constitution (National Archives, 2012). The Congress can propose amendments to the Constitution by a two-thirds majority vote from the House of Representatives and the Senate. On the other hand, amendments can also be proposed by constitutional convection. For this motion to be passed, it requires a two-thirds majority vote of the state legislatures (National Archives, 2012).

The proposed amendment has to be ratified by 75% of the states before being considered as the law. At this point, it is essential to note that presidential approval is not required to approve a constitutional amendment since the President of the United States does not play any role in the amendment process.
