The Place of Stone Douglas Hunter,2017-08-04 Claimed by many to be the most frequently documented artifact in American archeology Dighton Rock is a forty ton boulder covered in petroglyphs in southern Massachusetts First noted by New England colonists in 1680 the rock s markings have been debated endlessly by scholars and everyday people alike on both sides of the Atlantic The glyphs have been erroneously assigned to an array of non Indigenous cultures Norsemen Egyptians Lost Tribes of Israel vanished Portuguese explorers and even a prince from Atlantis In this fascinating story rich in personalities and memorable characters Douglas Hunter uses Dighton Rock to reveal the long complex history of colonization American archaeology and the conceptualization of Indigenous people Hunter argues that misinterpretations of the rock s markings share common motivations and have erased Indigenous people not only from their own history but from the landscape He shows how Dighton Rock for centuries drove ideas about the original peopling of the Americas including Bering Strait migration scenarios and the identity of the Mound Builders He argues the debates over Dighton Rock have served to answer two questions Who belongs in America and to whom does America belong Physical Oceanography Processes at Eastern Boundary Upwelling Systems Francisco Machin, Jose Gomez-Valdes, 2023-12-29 Eastern boundary upwelling systems EBUS have historically received attention from the scientific community due to their impact on the economic development of these highly productive systems Remote sensing numerical modeling and in situ observations have increased their spatial and temporal resolutions during the last 40 years in their strategy to provide reliable products about the actual state of the ocean The assembly of several data sources currently constitutes an opportunity to increase our knowledge about the present and future state of the relatively narrow and highly variable EBUS The primary forcing mechanism in the upwelling regions is the wind stress in areas close to the coast Long term trends in wind intensity in upwelling areas present considerable uncertainties as the different wind databases produce divergent results On the other hand although the effect of climate change in the interior ocean is increasing temperatures in upwelling areas the long term trends seem to be in the opposite direction Hence assessing the long term impact of the environmental conditions on upwelling development represents a major challenge for the scientific community This special issue aims to discuss the state of the art understanding of dynamical processes governing the ocean at the eastern boundary upwelling systems in a changing ocean Carbon Bridge to the Arctic Marit Reigstad, Maria Vernet, Jacob Carstensen, Camilla Svensen, 2020-06-22 This eBook is a collection of articles from a Frontiers Research Topic Frontiers Research Topics are very popular trademarks of the Frontiers Journals Series they are collections of at least ten articles all centered on a particular subject With their unique mix of varied contributions from Original Research to Review Articles Frontiers Research Topics unify the most influential researchers the latest key findings and historical advances in a hot research area Find out more on how to host your own Frontiers Research Topic or contribute to one as an author by contacting the Frontiers Editorial Office frontiersin.org about contact Domestic Violence in International Context Diana Scharff Peterson, Julie Schroeder, 2016-12-19 Domestic violence does not discriminate and is prevalent throughout the world regardless of race age or socio economic status Why then do reactions and response differ so widely throughout the world While some countries work diligently to address the matter through prevention and training others take a hands off approach in their response This book is one of the first to investigate domestic violence on a global scale and provides best practices gleaned from various countries around the world to paint a detailed picture of how police response to domestic violence is currently being conducted and provide training bodies with up to date information to enhance current curricula Domestic Violence in International Context brings together expert scholars native to twelve different countries to examine the history and scope of domestic violence and how it is being addressed repressed or ignored in their thirteen respective countries Their specialised knowledge and unique data come together to create a series of snapshots that will guide nations societies and communities worldwide in formulating effective strategies to prevent intervene and combat this epidemic and examine partnerships and programmes already in place This book is essential

Mulaudzi, Rachel T. Lebese, 2022 The aim of the book is to assist both local and international scholars in articulating the scholarly discourse on indigenous health attitudes practices and experiences The indigenous lens that was used to generate and disseminate indigenous knowledge in this book will strengthen indigenous scholarship thus making it accessible to a wider audience In addition the information shared in this book will add value for scholars and assist them with the indigenous knowledge needed to address sustainable development goals This book is timeous and topical as the discourse on the decolonisation of the curriculum is widely debated in the higher education space The discourse on the scholarship of indigenous knowledge as the tacit local knowledge that stems from cultural practices within communities has not been well articulated in the current health science education milieu Indigenous knowledge has remained overlooked and undermined for a very long time and the information remains untapped in local communities The scholars who conducted the research on which this book is based unearthed a wealth of knowledge which was tacit in nature and translated it into implicit knowledge that can be documented and shared with other scholars globally This knowledge will assist health care scholars in benefiting from knowledge practices and cultural beliefs that will assist them in health care planning teaching evidence based practice and further research

Echoes of Africa's Past. Archaeological explorations in the Anthropocene Savino di Lernia,2025-05-30 Marking the 70th anniversary of the Libyan Italian archaeological Mission in the Tadrart Acacus and Messak this volume offers a multidisciplinary reflection on Africa's deep past and its enduring legacies in the Anthropocene. By tracing the echoes of human environment interactions across time, it highlights how archaeological research continues to reshape our understanding of adaptation, resilience, and transformation in African societies. Drawing on interdisciplinary approaches including palaeoecology, bioarchaeology, rock art analysis, the archaeology of food production, and their various connections and networks, this book challenges outdated Eurocentric narratives by foregrounding African agency and complexity. Key themes include, among others, the Holocene environmental changes that influenced settlement patterns, the significance of rock art in interpreting past belief systems, and the impact of colonial trade and imperial expansion on indigenous communities. Echoes of Africa's Past serves as a resource for archaeologists, historians, anthropologists, and heritage scholars, offering fresh perspectives on Africa's dynamic past and its relevance to debates on sustainability and cultural heritage in the Anthropocene. Archaeological knowledge is incremental and hard won. It is assembled through time-intensive study of fragmentary evidence, and its corpus represents intergenerational effort. Though sometimes based on the study of stones, our interpretations are not written in them. Our working hypotheses typically run ahead of the evidence needed to assess them. Expanded investigations, new methods, and changing premises compel revision and sometimes outright rejection of earlier ideas. Typological aids deemed useful by earlier generations may outlive their usefulness at the same time as the evidence they organize remains pertinent and available for rethinking. The cumulative character of archaeological knowledge enables scalar perspectives across space and through time, casting what we know of one location in relief through comparison to others. These revisions, rethinkings, and scalar reflections encourage us to appreciate the complexity and diversity of past contexts as amply illustrated in contributions to this volume. In short, resuscitating echoes of Anthropocene Africa is painstaking work. In this way, and others, archaeology is and should be slow science. Ann B. Stahl, University of Victoria, BC, Canada.

Climate Change 2022 - Impacts, Adaptation and Vulnerability Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), 2023-06-22. The Working Group II contribution to the Sixth Assessment Report of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change. IPCC provides a comprehensive assessment of the scientific literature relevant to climate change impacts, adaptation, and vulnerability. The report recognizes the interactions of climate, ecosystems, and biodiversity, and human societies, and integrates across the natural, ecological, social, and economic sciences. It emphasizes how efforts in adaptation and in reducing greenhouse gas emissions can come together in a process called climate resilient development, which enables a liveable future for biodiversity and humankind. The IPCC is the leading body for assessing climate change science. IPCC reports are produced in comprehensive, objective, and transparent ways, ensuring they reflect the full range of views in the scientific literature. Novel elements include focused topical assessments and an atlas presenting observed climate change impacts and future risks from global to regional scales. Available as Open Access on Cambridge Core.
