Policing Pain Kevin Revier, 2025-11-11 How the medicalization of addiction during the U S opioid crisis has driven mass incarceration and mass policing in rural and deindustrialized communities The nationwide opioid public health emergency has led many advocates and public officials to call for drug policy reforms that reject traditional law and order approaches In Policing Pain Kevin Revier approaches the opioid epidemic from an abolitionist framework that seeks to treat people who use opioids not as so called criminals but as people in need of health care Based on two years of ethnographic research in Upstate New York a region highly impacted by overdoses job loss and deindustrialization Revier shows that incorporation of treatment within the criminal justice system has ultimately expanded the scope of the drug war turning individuals into treatable carceral subjects who are both medicalized and criminalized He argues that the incorporation of medical rhetoric and treatment within the criminal legal system maintains a carceral approach in rural and low income areas facing high rates of opioid overdose and economic disinvestment further entrenching the carceral state in the lives of people who use drugs Ultimately Policing Pain explores alternative strategies to promote harm reduction from an abolitionist ethic of care that advocates for people who use drugs while seeking to minimize criminal justice involvement in drug related issues

Enforcing Freedom Kerwin Kaye,2019-12-17 In 1989 the first drug treatment court was established in Florida inaugurating an era of state supervised rehabilitation Such courts have frequently been seen as a humane alternative to incarceration and the war on drugs Enforcing Freedom offers an ethnographic account of drug courts and mandatory treatment centers as a system of coercion demonstrating how the state uses notions of rehabilitation as a means of social regulation Situating drug courts in a long line of state projects of race and class control Kerwin Kaye details the ways in which the violence of the state is framed as beneficial for those subjected to it He explores how courts decide whether to release or incarcerate participants using nominally colorblind criteria that draw on racialized imagery Rehabilitation is defined as preparation for low wage labor and the destruction of community ties with bad influences a process that turns participants against one another At the same time Kaye points toward the complex ways in which participants negotiate state control in relation to other forms of constraint in their lives sometimes embracing the state's salutary violence as a means of countering their impoverishment Simultaneously sensitive to ethnographic detail and theoretical implications Enforcing Freedom offers a critical perspective on the punitive side of criminal justice reform and points toward alternative paths forward
