Policing Post-communist Societies Niels A. Uildriks, P. van Reenen, 2003 Eastern European countries have been involved in a complex transition towards more democratic forms of government Since the demise of communism the building up of an independent judiciary and a general reorientation of the police role within society have been key issues On the basis of three country studies in Russia Lithuania and Mongolia this book analyses the present state of policing in a variety of post communist societies in terms of police public violence democratic policing the rule of law and human rights It is also complemented by recent comparable and previously unpublished police data for Romania Bulgaria and Poland Those studies have been carried out amongst the rank and file of the uniform branch in Lithuania and Russia which were commissioned by the Soros Open Society Foundation They were specifically concerning views and experiences concerning police public violence and current policing problems in general A third study was carried in Mongolia amongst criminal investigators and sought to explore violent investigative practices This book seeks to combine a thorough theoretical analysis with unique empirical data It analyses the different problems of transition of post communist societies towards more democratic forms of government with unique data from both outside and inside the police

Death Threats and Violence Stephen J. Morewitz, 2008-11-05 Until recent decades there was little emphasis on studying death threats as a social or psychological phenomenon However since the 1960s attacks on public officials and celebrities and the ubiquitous nature of homicidal threats in face to face relations have spawned research and new organizational responses to death threats and related behaviors such as stalking Publicized workplace related death threats and shootings such as the 21 separate incidents since 1986 in which U S Postal Service employees were shot and the death threats and attacks directed at schools and universities have helped to transform death threats from a private phenomenon into a social problem Political leaders have developed new policies organizational structures and laws in an attempt to prevent death threats and related violence Moreover in the aftermath of 9 11 the U S government and other governments around the world have formulated new policies and organizational structures to deal with the threat of terrorist attacks At the level of interpersonal relations the weakening of social control processes allows individuals to make homicidal threats against people and organizations in different settings This book will address such questions as Under what conditions are individuals able to evade social control by making death threats What factors trigger the response of social control mechanisms to death threat makers How effective are the institutional responses to death threats At the macrolevel this book assesses how governments and paramilitary and terrorist groups also employ death threats to achieve their desired social and political objectives Annual Report, International Religious Freedom United States.
