RESEARCHER: I have been looking at the data on the impact of the 1997 Asian crisis on the economies of the Asian countries. The data shows that the impact was very severe. The GDP of the Asian countries fell by an average of 5.5% in 1997. This was a significant decline, especially for the countries that were heavily dependent on exports. The impact was also uneven across the region. Some countries, such as South Korea, experienced a much larger decline than others. This was due to a number of factors, including the high level of foreign debt and the reliance on exports.

1. The first step is to identify the problem.
