Polymerase Chain Reaction

Synopsis

In this Polymerase Chain Reaction (PCR) simulation, you will see through eight steps another method known as restriction fragment length polymorphism (RFLP) analysis. First, you will see the subject scientist explain in the text that the cloning may not be successful this year.

Design the test

After sampling, you will go to the restriction enzyme digests the samples of DNA you collected. By using a restriction enzyme, you will cut the DNA into fragments from the same source. It is up to you to make the correct digests according to the PCR experiment.

See the structure of DNA double helix structure up close

In the simulation, you will see the DNA supercoiled on the restriction label, illustrating the structure of DNA and the restriction site. You will see the correct restriction site experimental procedure, as well as all specifications of the test itself.

Identify the restriction

In the PCR simulation, you will collect your samples and other needed samples from the laboratory. You will also make restriction site fragments for analysis.

Learning Objectives

In this part of the simulation, you will see the objectives:

1. Identify the function of PCR (polymerase chain reaction) and RFLP.
2. Explain the PCR process using the text, facts, and data provided in the simulation.
