Advances in Environmental Psychology A. Baum, J. E. Singer, Jerome L. Singer, 2014-01-14 First published in 1982 It is not difficult to understand why interest in psychological aspects of energy production consumption and conservation has increased during the past decade The stresses of living or working near power plants the problems inherent in reducing fuel consumption and the many applications of behavioral science to these issues have all received attention of late This volume the third in a series is concerned with these issues the ways in which psychology can contribute to understanding and helping to solve what has generally been termed an energy crisis

Helping in the Community Garry Martin, James Grayson Osborne, 1980-07 During the late 1960s and the 1970s behavioral applications expanded from individual programs and institutional projects to a wide variety of community problems and settings These developments prompted the organization of an international conference on behavior modification in the community that was held in Winnipeg Manitoba Canada in July of 1976 Many of the presenters at that conference described original behavioral programs in a variety of community settings that have not been published elsewhere This book was prompted by that conference Its purposes are to describe the updated conference proceedings and with additional original contributions to heuristically relate community psychology and applied behavior analysis The first section presents an overview of the salient characteristics of community psychology proposes a broad conceptualization of behavioral community psychology and provides an overview of the promise that behavior modification holds for helping in the community The papers in the next four sections describe the results of the application of behavior modification in the community a collective statement on the current state of behavioral community intervention These papers are organized around four main topics Facilitating Behavioral Community Development Helping People by Influencing Mediators and Systems Helping Groups Live Together and Helping Individuals Help Themselves This organization stems from the broad conceptualization of behavioral community psychology presented in the first section Operating Systems Survey Charles L.
