

Mastering the In-Basket Exercise

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This seminar will focus on making the Right Decisions when tackling issues in the In-Basket Exercise. Understanding Compliance with Departmental Rules, Regulations, Policies, Procedures and laws of the Commonwealth when everyday ethical and moral conflicts are present is essential. It will focus on several key factors which often prevent candidates from making the right choice in these situations and will provide insight into how to successfully work through them. Seminar participants will review priority choices through the use of realistic job scenarios which require difficult decision-making analysis. Each decision will be reviewed, evaluated and analyzed in class.

TOPICS TO BE DISCUSSED

- >> Compliance with policies, procedures, rules and regulations when making decisions
- >> The leadership "Perspective"
- >> How the public trust impacts leadership decisions
- >> What makes an item a high priority?
- >> Factors that impact the "Actions Required" by the candidate
- >> Understanding and successfully completing the required task

Policy Issues in Employment Testing Linda C. Wing,Bernard R. Gifford,2012-12-06 Linda C Wing and Bernard R Gifford How should a society committed to the ideas of individual merit equal opportunity and the free marketplace allocate scarce educational and employment opportunities How can that society draw distinctions fairly and justifiably among people competing against each other for the same opportunity These are among the central questions of a democracy How a society answers them reveals a great deal about its values and its priorities and determines a great deal about its future course In recent decades we have placed the standardized pencil and paper test at the center of these fundamental questions about the nature of opportunity allocation in American life In more and more areas of our lives schools employment the military we rely upon the standardized test to rank or classify people and to assure ourselves that we have done so fairly The papers gathered here were prepared at the invitation of the National Commission on Testing and Public Policy The editors of this volume were involved in the commission from its inception in 1987 until shortly after the publication of its major public report in 1990 Bernard Gifford as Chair and Linda Wing as Associate Director

Police who engage in torture are condemned by human rights activists the media and people across the world who shudder at their brutality Stark revelations about torture by American forces at places like Guantanamo Bay have stoked a fascination with torture and debates about human rights Yet despite this interest the public knows little about the officers who actually commit such violence How do the police understand what they do How do their beliefs inform their responses to education and activism against torture Just Violence reveals the moral perspective of perpetrators and how they respond to human rights efforts Through interviews with law enforcers in India Rachel Wahl uncovers the beliefs that motivate officers who use and support torture and how these beliefs shape their responses to international human rights norms Although on the surface Indian officers subversion of human rights may seem to be a case of local culture resisting global norms officers see human rights as in keeping with their religious and cultural traditions and view Western countries as the primary human rights violators However the police do not condemn the United States for violations on the contrary for Indian police Guantanamo Bay justifies torture in New Delhi This book follows the attempts of human rights workers to both persuade and coerce officers into compliance As Wahl explains current human rights strategies can undermine each other leaving the movement with complex dilemmas regarding whether to work with or against perpetrators
