I. Scale Description

Self-Report of Delinquency instruments are well known and frequently used. Their advantages and disadvantages have been discussed in the literature (Huizinga and Elliott, 1986; Klein, 1988). The latter reference is a book containing several chapters of interest. The Self-Report of Delinquency (SRD) used in the Fast Track Project was previously used for the Pittsburgh Youth Study. In the SRD, participants describe their delinquent activities, tapping the areas of property damage, theft, assault, and substance use. For each type of delinquent act, the participant is asked whether he/she ever committed it, how many times in the past year, if others were involved, and if he/she was under the influence of alcohol or drugs while committing it.

II. Report Sample

Analyses were conducted on Cohort 1 year 12 normative (n=387) and Cohort 1 high-risk control samples (n=155, overlap is 79). One hundred nineteen students were missing the entire measure (26% of the sample), including 105 from the normative sample (27% of the sample) and 44 of the control sample (28% of the sample). The non-respondents included 17 students

Brandt, 2008-10-01 In this book David E Brandt examines the legal psychological and cultural issues relevant to understanding antisocial behavior in adolescence Based on his own research and a broad analysis of recent work in the field Brandt identifies the factors that are common in cases of delinquency The discussion considers the long term effects of social issues such as poverty as well as psychological issues such as the high levels of stress and anxiety suffered during childhood by many delinquents He shows how a failure to meet the developmental needs of children at both the family level and at a broader social and political level is at the core of the problem of juvenile delinquency Brandt concludes with an inquiry into how best to prevent delinquency Programs that address the developmental needs of children Brandt argues are more effective than policing juvenile courts or incarceration
