repudiation of slavery that it was Mrs Kidd was all the more appropriate Born in Millersburg Kentucky in 1904 to a black mother and a white father Kidd grew up to be a striking woman with fair skin and light hair Sometimes accused of trying to pass for white in a segregated society Kidd felt that she was doing the opposite choosing to assert her black identity Passing for Black is her story in her own words of how she lived in this racial limbo and the obstacles it presented As a Kentucky woman of color during a pioneering period of minority and women s rights Kidd seized every opportunity to get ahead She attended a black boarding academy after high school and went on to become a successful businesswoman in the insurance and cosmetic industries in a time when few women black or white were able to compete in a male dominated society She also served with the American Red Cross in England during World War II It was not until she was in her sixties that she turned to politics sitting for seventeen years in the Kentucky General Assembly one of the few black women ever to do so where she crusaded vigorously for housing rights Her story presented as oral history elicited and edited by Wade Hall provides an important benchmark in African American and women s studies and endures as a vital document in Kentucky history
