Section Quiz The National Judiciary Answers:

The Practice of International and National Courts and the (De-)Fragmentation of International Law Ole

Kristian Fauchald, André Nollkaemper, 2014-10-01 In recent decades there has been a considerable growth in the activities of international tribunals and the establishment of new tribunals Furthermore supervisory bodies established to control compliance with treaty obligations have adopted decisions in an increasing number of cases National courts further add to the practice of adjudication of claims based on international law While this increasing practice of courts and supervisory bodies strengthens the adjudicatory process in international law it also poses challenges to the unity of international law Most of these courts operate within their own special regime functional regional or national and will primarily interpret and apply international law within the framework of that particular regime The role of domestic courts poses special challenges as the powers of such courts to give effect to international law as well as their actual practice in applying such law largely will be determined by national law At the same time both international and national courts have recognised that they do not operate in isolation from the larger international legal system and have found various ways to counteract the process of fragmentation that may result from their jurisdictional limitations This book explores how international and national courts can and do mitigate fragmentation of international law It contains case studies from international regimes including the WTO the IMF investment arbitration and the ECtHR and from various national jurisdictions including Japan Norway Switzerland and the UK providing a basis for conclusions to be drawn in the final chapter National Courts and the International Rule of Law André Nollkaemper, 2012-10-11 Domestic courts contribute to the maintenance of the rule of international law by providing judicial control over the exercises of public powers that may conflict with international law This book comprehensively explores this issue and focuses mainly on judicial control of exercise of public powers by states during armed conflicts Domestic courts do not show a uniformity of approach in addressing cases concerning international humanitarian law and can often be seen to differ markedly in their response The book argues that different national courts demonstrate different functional roles in different countries These can be situated on a scale from apology to utopia which can be set out as follows 1 the apologist role of courts in which they serve as a legitimating agency of the state s actions 2 the avoiding role of courts in which they for policy considerations avoid exercising jurisdiction over a case 3 The deferral role of courts in which courts defer back to the other branches of the government the responsibility of finding an appropriate remedy 4 the normative application role of courts in which they apply international humanitarian law as required by the rule of law and 5 the utopian role of courts in which they introduce moral judgments in favour of the protection of the individual beyond the requirements of the law The book investigates the rulings of five key domestic courts those of the UK the USA Canada Italy and Israel to understand how their approaches differ and where their practice can be placed on the methodological scale This analysis has been assisted by the author s extensive field work notably in Israel and in the Occupied Palestinian Territories Providing a detailed understanding each court s function the book offers a critical analysis of the courts rulings in which both the legal arguments and the political context of cases they have ruled on are examined The book shows that the functional role of the national courts is a combination of contradictions and mixed attitudes and that national courts are in the process of defining their own role as enforcing organs of international humanitarian law
