"Self-esteem and self-confidence are necessary to success, do you agree?" Self-esteem is the means by which an individual has confidence in themselves or a good opinion about themselves and self-confidence is the means by which an individual trusts their own abilities, quality and judgement. A balanced self-esteem and self-confidence are both important and relevant for every human being in their lives, it helps one gain inner confidence and a good opinion of themselves.

If you have low self-esteem and self-confidence, you often believe negative about a situation or yourself and you may focus on what you feel are your weaknesses, and mistakes that you have made, you also do not trust yourself as much as you should. Having high self-esteem and self-confidence can sometimes lead to an increase in self-obsession and thinking you are capable of anything. It is important for students to have self-esteem and self-confidence as it helps students take responsibility over things they are capable of doing, as it means the students will approach situations in a positive way.

Chris Woodhead uses the device of Rhetorical question to get the reader thinking or to engage the parents to read on, Chris Woodhead questions the parents asking "How many times have you praised your out-of-control little monster today?" His argued point is that parents should stop praising badly behaved "little monsters" and the rhetorical question has been used to get the parents thinking or considering punishing their children for their actions more, he is also implying with the question to make the parents think about how many times they have praised their children.

Chris Woodhead carries onto giving statistics as "Five to one is the ratio of praise to punishment" he uses this to back up his argument to parents praising their children rather than punishing.

Chris Woodhead is implying that if children are not disciplined and home or punished, they will also find it hard at school because "the first thing they will tell you is that they had to deal with pupils who would not accept the conventions of normal schooling" this suggests that parents need to constantly check on their response to their children's behaviour as even schools do not accept it and the government also advice parents on this because this could affect their future because if they don't get the grades in school due to their behaviour then it's difficult for them to fi
