Microsoft® SharePoint® Foundation 2013 Quick Reference

Exploring SharePoint Foundation 2013 and Its Features

SharePoint Foundation 2013 allows users to share documents and other business information as well as collaborate with others. This functionality is accessible through a customizable website interface. The default SharePoint site is based on the team site template, described as "A place to work together with a group of people". SharePoint's collaboration and communication services are designed for use with tools like the Microsoft Office applications. Consequently, SharePoint typically includes the following components. (For brief descriptions of each of these components, see "SharePoint Foundation 2013 Overview" on page 2. For additional information, see "SharePoint Foundation 2013 Overview" on page 2 for additional information.)

Master pages — The top-level page of the team site. By default, it contains elements like the Quick Launch panel and a header that appears on most pages. Master pages can be edited using SharePoint Designer 2013 to change the appearance of the site. Changes made to the master page are automatically applied to all pages based on that master page, unless a page has been customized. (See "Customizing the Team Site" on page 2 for additional information.)

Site navigation — SharePoint provides a variety of ways to navigate a SharePoint site. Typically, the Quick Launch panel on the left side of the page contains links to the most commonly used areas of the site. The top link bar, which appears on most pages, contains links to the site's subsites. Users can also click the Site Contents link in the Quick Launch panel to view all of the site's subsites, lists, libraries, and other components. Users can also click the Search box to search the site. (See "Searching the Team Site" on page 2 for additional information.)

Check out/edit guide — Users can customize the look and feel of SharePoint sites by changing the site's theme, modifying the master page, or applying a custom design package. (See "Changing the Look and Feel" on page 2 for additional information.)

Settings — Clicking the Settings gear button at the top right of the screen displays a menu that provides access to various configuration options for the site, such as adding and removing components, changing the site's theme, and managing permissions. (See "Managing Permissions" on page 2 for additional information.)

Ribbon — The ribbon provides access to commands in SharePoint sites. The commands available vary depending on what type of page is being viewed. Some commands are not visible until you click a tab to activate it. To see descriptions of the commands in the ribbon, point to the desired command and wait for a ScreenTip to appear. Some commands display galleries that provide a preview of the effect of the command. For example, the Themes gallery on the Site tab of the ribbon displays a gallery of themes that can be applied to the site. Pointing to a theme in the gallery displays a preview of the theme. Clicking the theme applies it to the site.

Search — Searches the site. Allows users to search for information stored in SharePoint sites. For example, performing a search using the keyword "report" would return all documents and list items containing "report" as shown below. (See "Searching the Team Site" on page 2 for additional information.)

Content types — Each item in a library has a content type associated with it. The content type determines what information is stored for the item. For example, a document library might have content types for Word documents and Excel spreadsheets. Each content type has its own set of columns and templates. (See "Working with Content Types" on page 2 for additional information.)

Collaboration tools — Features in the SharePoint community category that are designed for use by teams. For example, the Tasks app creates a list that can be used to track tasks assigned to team members. The Calendar app creates a calendar that can be used to schedule meetings and events. (See "Working with Lists" on page 2 for additional information.)
